WASHINGTON —(INS)— Another naval bombardment of Japanese positions on Kiska island in the Aleutians was announced today by the navy.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC — The reduction of Munda's defenses by pulverizing blows from warships, bombers and artillery of American invasion forces is underway.

Japan's air base at New Georgia island—the key to conquest of the central Solomons—was raked Friday by the thundering guns of the United States naval units; rocked by 2,000-pound bombs dropped from more than 100 Avenger Torpedo and dauntless dive bombers; and blasted by bursting shells of artillery on nearby Rendova island.

The powerful three-way bombardment, reported in today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, presumably is the prelude to a land assault of American troops already on New Georgia both above and three miles east of Munda where they are preparing the jaws of a pincers.

The more than 70 tons of bombs concentrated on bivouacs and supply dumps in the Munda defense area yesterday were said by a spokesman for General MacArthur to constitute the heaviest air blow yet to fall on that much-bombed air base.

Wave on wave of the bombers swept over jungle positions of the enemy before Munda, exploding all types of bombs without encountering opposition from a single Japanese plane. Wildcat fighters were around just in case.

Only One Contest Booked for Shelby Primaries Aug. 10

Shelby will be one of the few cities in Ohio holding primary elections this year.

While the deadline for filing petitions for candidacy yesterday showed only one contest, the city is required to hold a primary election Aug. 10 even in the absence of a contest because it operates under a charter form of government.

Only contested office will be that of councilman of the second ward. In the non-partisan race the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes will win places on the ballot for the fall election. In the running are Chester A. Bell, Walter F. Mathias, and John Yokey.

The remainder of the slate in-

Raps Laxity In Check-Up Of Juveniles

Chief Issues Criticism After 5 Boys Are Held For Intoxication.

Mansfield's growing juvenile delinquency problem came into the open again today when police took five school-age youths into custody at Orange street and Central avenue at 2:30 a. m. after the boys had staged a beer-drinking spree through the north end of the city.

The case brought sharp criticism of the county juvenile authorities from Police Chief Meade K. Bates who said the juvenile officers "could stop some of this trouble by investigating some of the city's hangouts for boys and girls of school age."

The police chief said the county officers "might look into the juvenile problem at night instead of being in such a hurry to get home at quitting time."

All of the five youths taken into custody early today by police had been drinking, officers said, and they were tampering with a car at Orange street and Central avenue when police found them. The group attempted to start fights in two taverns earlier in the evening, officers learned.

Taken into juvenile court before noon today for questioning, the youths admitted buying beer at a tavern, Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer said. They said they were looking at the car because one of them was planning to buy an automobile.

Judge Cramer told the boys to be back in court at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday with their parents. The youths range in age from 14 to 17 years and all but one of them live in the south side of the city. Two are brothers.

Judge Cramer blamed war prosperity and lack of home supervision for the delinquency problem which is becoming a head-

LOSES RACE

Driver Fails to Beat Train, Auto Demolished.

A Mansfield motorist who told police he thought he could get across the North Main street crossing ahead of a train, escaped injury or death at 6:30 a. m. today by jumping from his stalled car which was badly smashed.

The driver, Perry Lee Wilson, 30, of 555 Highland avenue, said he had started over the crossing and then stopped his car after deciding that an eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train was too close. He jumped out seconds before the locomotive demolished the front of the car.

Wilson, who was headed north, related to police that he saw the crossing flashers operating, but believed there was time to get across ahead of the train which was slowing down for a stop in Mansfield.

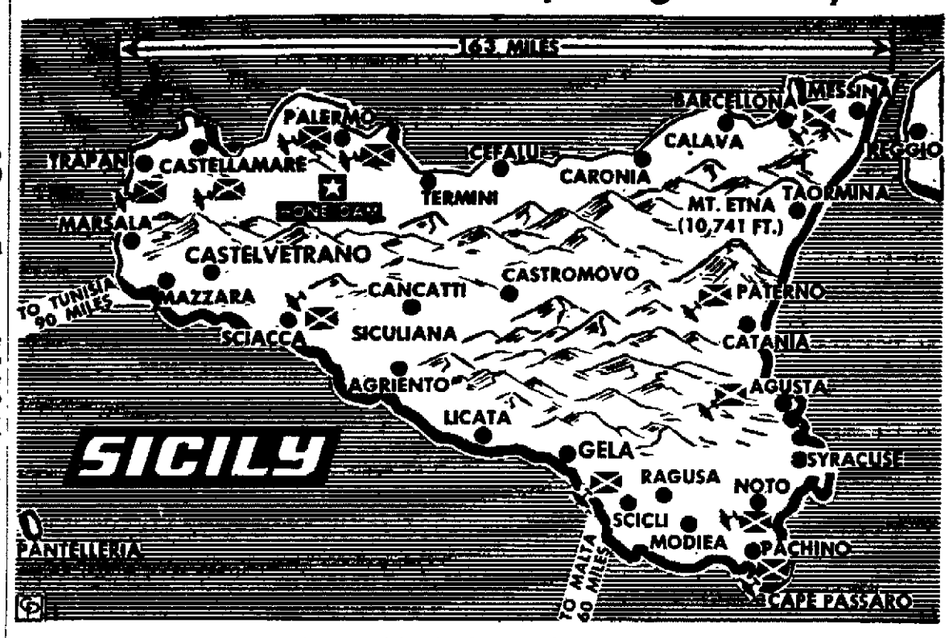
GENERALS MEET

Hold Conference In London; It's a Military Secret.

LONDON —(INS)— Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, former commander of the Hawaiian department, was revealed today to have arrived in London to confer with Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of United States forces in the European theater.

The nature of the conference or future plans of Gen. Emmons were not disclosed.

Where Battle of Europe Began Today



The battle of Europe opened early today when American, Canadian and British forces invaded the southern and eastern coasts of Sicily under cover of naval bombardment and a huge aerial umbrella. Directed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied forces swarmed ashore in landing barges and spread smoke and flame 10 miles inland at some points. The mountainous island, with its harbor-pocked coastline is shown in the above map. Exact landing points have not been disclosed.

FARM MISHAP KILLS YOUTH

Skull Fracture Suffered When Thrown From Hay Tedder Causes Death.

Unconscious for six days in General hospital following a farm accident near Bellville, Frank Dean Baughman, 17, died at 8:30 p. m. Friday. Death was the result of a skull fracture.

The farm youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baughman, was injured last Saturday noon when a team of horses ran away, throwing him off a hay tedder on his father's farm west of Bellville.

He was a member of the band and Future Farmers class in Bellville high school and would have been graduated next spring. He was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 2:30 p. m. at the Snyder funeral home in Lexington with Rev. C. M. Sauder, pastor of the Lexington Presbyterian church, officiating.

Surviving, besides the parents, are one sister, Ruth, at home, and a grandmother, Mrs. Grace Baughman of near Bellville.

JUST WASTED

Editor Says Most Government Releases Are Useless.

TYRONE, Pa. —(INS)— Ninety-seven per cent of all government releases reaching his desk "go straight into the waste basket," A. F. Flenner, editor of the Tyrone Herald, declared today as he beseeched Washington to "set an example" for the nation's newspapers in the drive to conserve newsprint.

Waging a campaign to compel the War Production Board to rescind its directive ordering a slash of from 2.5 to 5 per cent in newsprint during the present quarter, Flenner said the "vast amount of material that comes from U. S. agencies is useless as well as quite unnecessary because the press associations adequately cover the essential government releases."

He charged that while newspapers were asked to reduce output, the federal government was swamping editors throughout the country with releases that were good only for the waste basket.

CHARGE MURDER IN OAKES DEATH

Authorities Declare Wealthy Knight Bludgeoned, Hold Dashing Son-In-Law.

(By Associated Press)

NASSAU, Bahamas — The arrest of Sir Harry Oakes' son-in-law brought a startling climax today to the mystery which grew out of the death of immensely-wealthy British baronet.

Alfred D. Marigny, dashing husband of Oakes' eldest daughter Nancy, was held on a formal charge of murder although he flatly denied he clubbed the 68-year-old knight to death.

Miami officers called to Nassau by the Duke of Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, helped Colonial police make the investigation which led to the accusation against the yacht racer and sportsman, who dropped the title of Count which he used in his native Indian Ocean Island, the British colony of Mauritius.

Shortly before De Marigny was taken into custody at Oakes' home, it was revealed

Charles Mill NYA Center Closed by Government Order

The National Youth administration war training center at Charles Mill lake had been closed today by government order after congress voted death to the NYA by shutting off its funds.

Thomas Jenkins, director of the camp for the past year, said the 82 girls who had been training at the center were released to go to their homes or accept jobs in war industries.

The camp was opened as a training center in April, 1941, and in May of last year was turned over to the exclusive training of girls for jobs in war industries. Girls from 17 to 21 from Ohio and Kentucky communities had been housed at the training center.

Jenkins said he had received no word as to the disposition of the shop equipment at the center, although legislation pending in congress would turn the machinery over to school shops. There are seven other NYA centers in the state, three of them at colleges and universities.

SOVIETS TAKE INITIATIVE AT BELGOROD

Smash Nazi Panzer Thrusts And Drive Nazis Back To Original Posts.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW — The Red army, seizing the initiative after halting German panzer spearheads in a gigantic tank battle, has wiped out Nazi wedges in its lines near Belgorod and driven the enemy back to his initial positions, front dispatches said today.

The Soviet counter-attacks were buttressed by reserves rushed to the threatened Belgorod sector as the battle of the southern front entered its sixth day on a note of rising fury.

Burned-out hulks of hundreds of Nazi 60-ton Tiger tanks, wrecked aircraft and thousands of bodies littered the battlefield over which Russian and German armored forces slugged it out in a battle of extermination.

Every attempt of the Germans to exploit their wedges near Belograd was frustrated by the bitterness of the Soviet defense and the launching of the Russian counter-attacks sent the battle into a new phase.

Maj. Vassily Dubkov, military commetator for the army organ Red Star, said Russian tanks and infantry counter-attacked the Germans in one sector with such force that the Nazis were compelled to retreat in disorder, abandoning several important positions captured earlier.

BEGIN ROLLBACK

OPA Orders Price Reduction For Cabbage, Lettuce.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The Office of Price Administration, in an initial move to reduce "excessive" prices of fresh fruits and vegetables, today ordered a rollback of 50 per cent in the price of cabbage and 25 per cent in lettuce prices. No subsidies are involved.

The new ceilings, approved by the war food administration, are effective July 20.

The cut back applies to wholesale receiving points, rather than at retail or shipping levels, but will automatically drop consumer prices an equal amount.

Peas, snap beans, carrots, apples, pears and other fresh fruits and vegetables have been mentioned for possible regulation later.

REDS REJOICE OVER LANDING

Welcome Sicilian Invasion as New Blow to Axis Forces.

MOSCOW —(AP)— The Russian people joyously welcomed news of the Allied landing on Sicily today.

Even before the newspapers had time to comment editorially, the people entered into excited discussions, calling the new offensive "a fine gift" for the Red army, now striving to block the summer offensive of the Nazis.

"It is not the second front, of course," they were saying, "but it is another important blow to the Axis."

Perfect Work Record Holders To Fly In Dive Bombers.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Employes of the Columbus Curtiss-Wright airplane plant were given an excellent reason for having perfect work attendance records today.

Plant officials announced that each month the names of 15 employes will be drawn from a list of workers with perfect work records the previous month and the winners given flights in one of the dive bombers the plant is producing for the navy.

Thrust Inland Under Massive Aerial Umbrella After Warships Pave the Way for Invasion With Fierce Bombardment of Coast Points.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Predicting the invasion of Europe in many different directions, President Roosevelt hailed the invasion of Sicily by United Nations forces as the "beginning of the end" for the Axis, it was announced by the White House today.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa — The United Nations opened the battle of Europe today by sending powerful invasion forces swarming onto the beaches of Sicily, and the first eyewitness report said a bombardment by Allied warships had "started a chain of smoke and flames" stretching 10 miles into the island.

"Somebody is definitely catching hell, and I give you one guess who it is," said Lieut. Robert S. Bleile of Seaford, Del., as he brought his Lockheed Lightning back to an advanced air base from a flight over Sicily.

A mighty aerial umbrella aided the Allied invasion forces which were made up of American, British and Canadian troops. Meager and unofficial reports said the invasion aided by heavy naval support was "proceeding according to plan."

Indications were that the Axis defenders were putting up a stiff fight.

(Axis communiques reported that the fighting was heavy on the southeastern coast of Sicily, and said decisive counter-blows had been struck against the invaders. British sources suggested that other and more important blows might be struck against the fortress of Europe soon.)

Bleile said that from his reconnaissance plane he could see Allied warships "shelling the enemy without interruption." Allied landing barges "seemed to be everywhere," he added.

The Allied amphibious operations under command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower began after two weeks of mounting aerial onslaught that was continued by hundreds of airplanes up to Friday, when U. S. Liberators from the Middle East smashed Comiso and Taormina, 30 miles south of Messina, causing heavy damage.

Fifteen Axis planes were shot down Friday when Allied aircraft from the northwest Africa command encountered increased opposition, losing 10 airplanes.

A furious naval barrage that illuminated sections of the Sicilian coast opened the invasion operations in darkness as the Allied fleet— including battleships—threaded through the enemy mine field and put assault troops ashore in tank-carrying barges. There was no immediate indication that Mussolini's scattered and battered Italian fleet accepted the challenge to fight the invasion.

The first phase of the attack on Sicily, regarded popularly as the opening move in establishment of a second front, was designed to establish bridgeheads and strong Axis opposition was anticipated in the air and on the ground.

(London reports describing the greatest Allied offensive of the war suggested that parachute and air-borne troops were used by the Allies to crash through the strong Sicilian defenses, manned by an estimated 300,000 Italians and Germans. Radio Morocco reported the landings were "being consolidated" on the west coast of Sicily, but it was believed many landings had been made around the shores of the island, with the ports of Catania, Palermo and Trapani as well as Comiso, Catania and Gerbini airdromes as the main objectives.)

British Hint Additional Mediterranean Landings

(By United Press)

LONDON—British military observers said with apparently intentional vagueness today that the Allied invasion of Sicily should not be regarded as "the only landing or even THE landing."

This was interpreted as a hint that the invasion may be a forerunner of other amphibious operations in the Mediterranean in the near future.

Informants described the invasion as an "operation in force" which, according to latest reports reaching London, is "going according to plan."

On the basis of the scanty reports available, military observers said, heavy and difficult fighting is expected before the invasion forces succeed in establishing firm bridgeheads.

Apparently because other operations may be impending, these observers were reluctant to describe the Sicilian attack as the opening of a "second front."

An estimated 300,000 Italian troops plus 100,000 Germans, including a division of combat troops and Luftwaffe units, are defending Sicily, it was believed.

The Italian forces included the sixth Italian army commanded by Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, formerly deputy chief of staff and undersecretary of war, military observers reported. They included units specially trained for coastal defense.

The Axis forces were thought to have some armor on the island but the exact strength was not known.

Games, Covered Dish Dinner, Movies to Program at Park Thursday.

More than 500 members of First Lutheran church are expected at the annual church and Sunday school picnic Thursday at South park, with athletic games, covered-dish dinner and the showing of motion pictures taken at last year's picnic highlighting the affair.

Activity will start at 2:30 p. m. with athletic games. Committee in charge of athletics consists of Rev. John Gensel, Ruth Maffet, Simon Wolf, Russell McCullough and Athea Lorentz.

Supper will be served at 6:15 p. m. Committee in charge of arrangements for tables is T. D. Brown and Earl Dye; Coffee, Joseph Parrott and Charles Cromer; lemonade, William Baker, Willard Culler; ice cream, Howard Miller, H. L. Baer and C. K. Dye.

The horseshoe committee consists of Simon Wolf, Edward Bricker and W. F. Beam. J. K. Linsenmayer and Pearl Danback are in charge of entertainment.

All families of the church are welcome and are requested to bring a covered-dish. Ice cream, coffee and lemonade will be furnished by the Sunday school department.

Short talks will be given by Rev. Grover E. Swoyer and Rev. Gensel.

At the 9:30 a. m. service Sunday, Rev. Swoyer will speak on the subject, "The Father's Compassion." Rev. Gensel will use as his topic, "A Great Memory," at the 8 p. m. service. Florence Welty Missionary society will have a picnic supper Monday at 5:15 p. m. at South park. Seventh district meets at North Lake park pavilion Wednesday for the annual family picnic dinner at noon.

FREE METHODIST

Pauline M. Maxwel, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Maxwell of Free Methodist church, will be guest speaker at the morning and evening services at the church this Sunday and the following Sunday.

Miss Maxwell is vacationing with her parents. As an evangelist, she has covered a greater part of the United States and Canada.

GRACE LUTHERAN

Rev. Henry G. Rempel will deliver his first sermon as new pastor of the church at the service Sunday at 9:30 a. m.

His topic will be, "Has a Loving God Anything to Do With the Present War?" At the 8 p. m. service he will speak on "What Is the Great Essential of Salvation." Rev. Rempel comes here from Flora, Ind., where he was pastor of Grace Brethren church three years. He has traveled through 35 states and Canada as an evangelistic song leader. Rev. Rempel succeeds Rev. Arthur Cashman who has accepted a position with the Dickson Bible company, Chicago, Ill., in Winona Lake, Ind.

ST. JOHN'S EVANGELICAL

Regular morning services will resume at the church Sunday after a two weeks recess. Rev. Paul H. Saleste will speak on the subject, "I Stand at the Door."

The regular sunday school sessions precede the service with the lesson topic being "God Selects a Leader." St. John's Brotherhood meets for an outdoor event at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Horchler, Lexington road, Monday at 6 p. m. Outdoor sports will be the feature. St. John's Guild meets Wednesday at 2 p. m. in charge of Mrs. Edward Fisher.

MAKING FIRST THINGS FIRST

To succeed in the highest sense one must make first things first. What that first thing is, is answered by our Lord when he said, "Seek first the kingdom of God." We must find the way into that kingdom and possess the spirit of that kingdom individually. To be a member of the kingdom of God is a personal matter and involves personal obligations and responsibilities. The kingdom is also a social concern, a brotherhood; besides discharging personal duties to the kingdom there are some that must be discharged jointly with others; this brotherhood is best seen in the church. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?
—D. Carl Yoder.

During the past nine years, giving in the Lutheran church for benevolences has increased 57% it was reported at an opening session of the seventh biennial convention.

There is evidence that Russia is changing in her attitude toward religion. Church leaders of groups that have not been antagonistic to the Soviet Union have had their civil rights restored. Relentless atheists in the government are gradually being removed. Blasphemous plays are being suppressed. Finally, school books are being revised and statements included in the text to show the important part Christianity has played in the early years of Russian civilization.

Of the 65 students who graduated from Moody Bible Institute recently, many will go into the service of their country, but in time 17 hope to carry the gospel to Africa, China, Indian Latin America, and South America; others will become pastors, home missionaries, and directors of Christian education.

As a result of the launching of the United Church canvass in a radio address by Herbert Hoover, 16 denominations, Christian and Jewish, in more than 30 states, worked for three weeks in a common purpose. "The churches call upon us to rekindle the fires of our faith, to make that faith an active, glowing part of our personal life, even taxing ourselves for the spread of that faith," Mr. Hoover said. "The world hungers for spiritual strength."

Our Preacher Says

© D. Carl Yoder

There is no need of any one's being really poor since poverty is relative. No man is poor who has the use of necessary things. One thinks himself poor when he does not have the money to buy that which he craves. The best things are not bought with money; such as, integrity, honor, truthfulness, patience, kindness, righteousness, love, and faith in God. A man's best estate is something more than money.

WIT AND WISDOM

One ought to learn to concentrate well, to do one thing at a time and do it well; to be busy at one thing to be done next. One day a visitor called on Frau Ruth who was seriously ill and who had exemplified the above traits all her life; she sent a message to her visitor, saying, "Frau Ruth is very busy dying."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and don't get far away from home if you have a "B" book.

One consolation, in carrying your own packages from the market, is that they're not so heavy.

Sympathy is being expressed for those veteran youths of the NYA staff, who are being cast adrift with nothing in sight but a job that involves work.

'Dráining Off' Process Starts

RUDE AWAKENING from the roseate dream of a New Deal Utopia, with all human wants supplied by "the government," came today to millions of American workers as they were brought into first actual contact with the 20 per cent payroll deduction tax plan.

Because some people couldn't be depended upon to save enough to meet their income tax obligations on a quarterly basis, as had been in vogue heretofore, and because some groups of workers adopted the insolent attitude, "Let 'em try to collect it," the withholding tax has been made applicable to all workers for wage or salary—effective July 1—so today marks the first bite out of the pay envelopes of a large percentage of employed people in the United States.

It is also intended that this payroll deduction shall "drain off" some of the excess purchasing power of those persons whose earnings have been greatly increased by the war work in which they are now engaged, apparently without consideration for the plight of more millions who are on fixed incomes and who are compelled to meet higher living costs and service charges out of 80 per cent of their 59-cent New Deal dollar.

Making every allowance for legitimate need for billions of dollars to carry on the war, the bald fact remains that much of the present financial plight, which imposes a needlessly heavy burden on taxpayers, stems from New Deal experiments inspired by such starry-eyed theorists as Harry Hopkins and others of the "palace guard" to whom Chester Davis referred in quitting the post of food administrator.

One shocking thing is that billions of dollars of hard-earned money is being drained from taxpayers to maintain the non-military bureaucracy that has been built up in Washington by men who never experienced the necessity of earning a dollar to sustain themselves—and to whom "millions," "billions" and "trillions" are merely so many words that sound something alike.

It is announced that one of the first tasks of congress, when it gets back in action on September 14, will be to devise ways to increase the flow of taxes into the federal treasury.

Meanwhile, however, congressmen and senators are quite likely to hear that the thought uppermost in the minds of taxpayers is that further elimination of non-military costs of government should be made their first order of business.

Effective Building Code Needed

MANSFIELD'S approach to resumption of home-building, to relieve increasing congestion by providing 100, or more, additional moderate-priced homes, naturally brings up the matter of this city's long-standing need for a sensible, but effective, building code and a zoning ordinance.

Lack of an intelligently restrictive zoning ordinance, which was under lively discussion as much as twenty-five years ago, has had the unfortunate result of scattering business establishments through many of the city's previously desirable residential sections.

Freedom from reasonable requirements of a complete building code has also opened the way for at least a few transient or local contractors to foist some poorly constructed houses on unsuspecting buyers.

The Mansfield Real Estate Board takes natural leadership in an effort to secure quick action on a building code and it may be hoped that such a clearly needed protective measure will not be longer neglected.

It is probably too much to expect early action on a zoning ordinance, judging from the way that matter has been kept pigeonholed for a quarter of a century, due to objections which reflected self-interest rather than civic betterment.

Can Germans Be 'Cured'?

A NEW book, "Is Germany Incurable?", by Dr. Richard M. Brickner, expert in mental diseases, is attracting much attention. Dr. Brickner thinks that the German nation as a whole, and not merely a few leaders, suffers from the form of insanity known as paranoia. Symptoms are delusions of grandeur, leading to the opinion that Germany should rule the earth, and a fixed idea that the country is continually being presecuted by the rest of the world. This abnormal mental state has already caused two wars, and according to Dr. Brickner must be cured if the world is not to undergo a third.

How this is to be done is not so clear, Dr. Brickner would separate the sane individuals from the rest and give them preferential treatment. Even at that, it is an appalling thought that before the world can be assured of survival, 80,000,000 people must first be brought back to sanity.

Perhaps Dr. Brickner does not make enough allowance for the profoundly curing effect of utter defeat.

South American Tennis Champ

THE "GOOD NEIGHBOR" policy, instituted toward Latin America, aims to know our neighbors better. North Americans have, as a rule, known very little about South America. One cause, the lack of personal contact, is to some extent being removed.

Francisco Segura of Ecuador is doing a good deal to bridge this gap of ignorance. A student at the University of Miami, he has just won the national collegiate tennis title. His success, in a game which taxes every muscle of the body, refutes any who may still think of Latins as inferior physically and as beings to look down upon.

South America is likely to play a large part in the future history of the United States. Much depends on the attitudes arising from individual contacts. The popularity of Segura is an asset to the Western Hemisphere.

"I forgot to tell you yesterday that I came to New York City in the morning," is the introductory revelation in a recent "My Day" column—with the same day's paper telling about Eleanor arriving at a ranch near Reno for a week's vacation. My, how some folks do get around!

Oh well, if worse comes to worst, we CAN get along without red raspberries.

HARDSHIPS OF WAR—HERE AND ELSEWHERE

Allies Find Ways to Beat Subs

By CHARLES P. STEWART

PRIME Minister Churchill reveals that the anti-U boat war has taken a "most solid and encouraging" turn. Thirty of Hitler's undersea raiders were sunk in May, and in June, the Allies had "the best month we have ever known in the whole 46 of the war."

Though Mr. Churchill did not say so, evidence is piling up that the Allies at long last have developed the weapons and the methods to beat the U-boat. New long-range patrol planes and bombers, faster, more maneuverable escort ships to protect convoys, and new sonic detection devices are sending Hitler's U-boat marauders to the bottom with accelerating tempo.

In the past two weeks, better than a U-boat a day has been sunk, according to Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner in Canada. And, according to Mr. Churchill, in the past 45 days "scarcely a single merchant ship has been sunk in the whole of the North Atlantic."

* * *

EVEN the German military commentators concede the fact that when announced, Allied shipping losses for June will be "the lowest in years." From a high in March, according to communiques of the German High Command, of 851,000 tons, Allies losses fell to 415,000 tons in April and 372,000 tons in May. Though these figures are doubtless greater than our actual losses, they do indicate the downward trend.

"U-boat warfare is growing increasingly hard," Vice Admiral Leutzow complained recently in the German Leipziger Neueste Nachrichten. "The enemy's lavish use of effective depth charges hampers the activity of the U-boats to an extraordinary extent. Further difficulties are caused by the constant enemy patrolling of vast stretches of sea off the North American and European coasts and the use of carrier-borne aircraft on the high seas."

The Atlantic Patrol of huge four-motored bombers operating out of the U. S., Canada, Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland and the British Isles is what the admiral referred to. The planes make day-long series of interlocking sweeps and watch over convoys mile-by-mile from the time they leave our East Coast ports until they reach the British Isles.

The British Admiralty and Air Ministry issued a joint communique last month describing a 5-day battle in which land-based planes of the Patrol, including B-24 Liberators and B-17 Flying Fortress bombers, teamed with warships and aircraft from an escort carrier to hammer U-boat packs stalking Allied convoys.

In the fight, which ranged over hundreds of miles of the Atlantic, the planes attacked the U-boats with depth charges, machine-gunned them when they surfaced and directed the convoys' destroyers to the spot where they were hiding. Final score: 2 U-boats sunk, 3 probably sunk, and others damaged.

* * *

ALSO aiding in the war against the U-boat are the new D-E anti-submarine vessels being turned out by the hundreds in U. S. shipyards to protect our convoys. The 1,300-ton, 300-foot D-E's are larger and faster than the British corvettes used for this purpose.

Germany banked heavily on her U-boat fleet to keep the Allies from massing sufficient men and equipment in England and North Africa for the coming European offensive, and possibly, even to starve the British into submission.

'Last year' German subs and bombers sank some 13,500,000 tons of Allied shipping, thus nullifying all new U. S. and British construction. In addition, much precious war cargo went to the bottom with the ships.

Hitler is finding, as the Kaiser did before him, that he cannot win the war with his U-boat fleets.

The hour cometh and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him.—John 4:23.

Timely Editorial

Unfair to the Newspapers.

To the boys on the White House beat, the president took occasion the other day to reread his lecture on the shortcomings of newspapers. In reply to a request for specific cases to support his charge of a prevailing irresponsibility in the press, he could think of one—and it seems to us a curious choice: The publication of scandalous rumors concerning the WACs in Africa.

The story was carried by a columnist for ONE New York newspaper, but THE DENIAL of its content, by the secretary of war, appeared in EVERY newspaper in the country.

A foul rumor died, as they all do, in the light of publicity provided by the nation's press.

If there is any virtue in repetition, it is now well established that Mr. Roosevelt dislikes the press. However, the logic of his attitude is not helped by citing the delinquency of one newspaper while ignoring the good offices of all the others in the same matter. —Detroit News

Summary of Week's Happenings

'Planner' and Businessman Clash As 'Battle of Washington' Rages

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

AS THE "Battle of Washington" shifted from congress to the more dramatic conflict between "progressive" Vice President Henry Wallace and "conservative" Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones, capital observers professed to view the home-front situation with new optimism.

The disagreement between the head of the Board of Economic Warfare and the Federal Loan Administrator is, after all, they point out, a disagreement over the best way to promote the nation's interests. Though two divergent schools of thought are represented, the sincerity of neither man has been questioned.

Violent as has been the duel of accusations—and in wordage and bluntness the exchange before the senate appropriations committee has set a new high—there are those who say the outburst is really a sign of health rather than weakness at home.

These assert that it merely brings into the open a conflict of long standing between the businessmen in the government and the theoreticians.

Wallace has been recognized as foremost of the long-range planners, the reformers. Jones, Texas self-made tycoon, is said to typify the best of the business brains in the administration.

Wallace, as chief of the BEW, accused Federal Loan Administrator Jones of "bungling" and a "Rip Van Winkle approach" to the task of laying in supplies of strategic materials for the government. During the week Jones flatly denied any such thing and accused Wallace of a rash and ill-considered approach to the same problem.

"As for the charge, which Mr. Wallace appears to regard as a major crime, that I have attempted to safeguard the taxpayers' money, I must plead guilty," Jones rejoined.

Those who see honest differences in philosophy between the two men, and recognize the capabilities of each, say the home front is not likely to be harmed by an open debate. Rather, they say, it will probably clear the over-charged Washington air.

At Home

Congress Recesses.

Feeling that they had earned a two-months breathing spell, national legislators in house and senate were practically unanimous late Thursday afternoon in recessing until Tuesday, September 14—unless called back by an emergency.

Appropriations believed adequate for war needs were made without question, and congress also left President Roosevelt free to experiment with subsidy payments in rolling back retail food prices.

Efforts to require senate approval of employes of war agencies who are paid $4,500 a year, or more, failed.

While they are recessing legislators will have time to think about ways to get more tax money into the treasury next year.

* * *

New Income, New Taxes.

"The certainty that war could never result in the enrichment of any man would give us all security and comfort."

So wrote Washington's troubleshooter Bernard Baruch in a study of wartime inflation. During the week the house ways and means committee acted to deflate war-swollen incomes and help the treasury secure $12,000,000,000 in new taxes.

As the congressional recess neared, the committee planned to start work Sept. 8 on new war levies, instructed its tax staff to "report on the feasability of an individual excess-profits tax."

Application of the excess-profits principle, it was said, would mean that a person who made $2,000 in peacetime and now has an income of $4,000 might be taxed heavier than one whose salary has long been $4,000.

* * *

Coal-Minded Congress.

Ever since it was enacted in 1937, the Guffey coal act which puts a floor under bituminous prices has been popular with miners, operators and the president.

During the week the house rules committee tabled a resolution to extend the act after Aug. 23 when it expires. Congress' recess was seen to doom the measure.

The act—only thing on which miners and operators appeared in agreement—established minimum prices at the mines for soft coal, was credited with ending a chaotic competitive system under which some mines were losing money and miners' employment was adversely affected.

Administrative costs averaged about $3,000,000 a year, but the treasury gained about $5,000,000 annually from the act because it provided for a tax of one cent a ton on all soft coal.

* * *

Vacations Ltd.

All this spring and summer highways on the eastern seaboard have been virtually-abandoned causeways—silent relics of a way of life which war destroyed.

Good news came to some motorists, however, when the OPA announced that "A" card holders in the East may take vacation trips in their cars after July 15. Upon application, it was said, ration boards will issue permits for a pleasure drive to seashore or mountains providing the motorist can show accumulated gas coupons sufficient to cover the distance he plans to drive.

The news followed soon after the biggest holiday railway and bus jam the East had ever known.

* * *

Whose Hoosegow?

A month ago, 16-year-old Robert Pinckney invested six dollars in a tax sale of lots at Harvard, Neb. (pop. 865). Promptly then he announced that the community's jail was located on one of the lots he had purchased.

Disconcerted by the error which had led them to barter Harvard's hoosegow for a paltry sum, the city fathers angrily rejected Robert's offer to rent them the structure. He threatened eviction.

During the week the council ruefully admitted that the jail was his, prepared to vacate the property.

Abroad

Death at Gibraltar.

America's Independence Day was a sad day for Free Poland and her hopes of early independence from Axis occupation. Soon after General Wladyslaw Sikorski, premier and commander-in-chief of Poland's government-in-exile, had dispatched a July 4 greeting to President Roosevelt, he was killed in an airplane crash 300 yards out in the Mediterranean from Gibraltar.

The premier was returning to England from an inspection tour of Polish forces in the Middle East whom he had advised to be ready soon for their imminent assignment, presumably for invasion duty.

Sikorski was the first head of a government to be killed in a war air crash, a possibility that keeps secret service agents on edge whenever President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, King George and other United Nations leaders travel by air.

* * *

Delayed Offensive.

During the week Germans lunged along a 165-mile front in Russia, encompassing the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod areas.

There was some indication that the Germons had taken a leaf from the book of Gen. Bernard Montgomery, British hero of the African campaign. For Montgomery's classic plan of attack—a smashing artillery barrage followed by air bombardment to clear the way for infantry and armored divisions—was the pattern of the German drive.

The first fighting disclosed an adequate flexibility of Russian defenses. The Nazis broke through in isolated sectors, but made no important penetration. Russia said the first thrust cost the Germans almost 750 tanks—including some new 60-tonners—and more than 200 airplanes. They claimed 10,000 Nazis slain in the first day's fighting.

* * *

Bombing 'Guilt.'

With typical 'New Order' gall, the German Foreign Office issued a White Book to prove that the British were responsible for the introduction of air raids. Forgetting their destruction of Warsaw, Rotterdam and Coventry, the Nazi propagandists sought to gain sympathy for Germany now that her cities are being bombed.

During the week German war industries were again devastatingly attacked.

* * *

Jungle Fighters.

Infiltration tactics, such as the Japs used on the Malay peninsula, have been perfected by the Americans. Small groups landing on isolated beaches take to the jungle, kill Japs wherever found. Such "Indian warfare" is helping the Yanks solidify their new island positions.

Americans have proved good jungle fighters.

In a murky dawn, American soldiers and Marines swarmed ashore on Rendova Island, seven miles across water from Jap-held Munda. Landing boats, dropped from darkened transports, raced ashore with troops and artillery. Within 90 minutes a small Jap force was wiped out.

Meanwhile Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who had flown from Australia to New Guinea, saw the men of his command lay siege to Salamaua. Landing at Nassau Bay, American Marines pressed to within ten miles of the enemy New Guinea stronghold, supported as at Rendova by formidable air might.

Quotes

Frank Knox, secretary of the navy: "Possession of the initiative does not mean that the war has been won, and that victory is just around the corner."

Winston Churchill in a message to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek: "The initiative is being wrested from the grasp of the enemy and we can look forward with confident hope to the time when all over the world, the aggressors will be driven to unconditional surrender."

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE PARLOR

YESTERDAY I went into a large stone house, where the walls were thick and the window jambs were made of broad oak planks sawed in an early day and worked smooth by a hand plane. The windows had small panes, with weatherbeaten wood, but new putty conked against the outside of the glass.

I felt at home, for I have lived, as a boy, among such substantial houses. (Morrison's Cove, in Bedford and Blair counties of Pennsylvania, has still a goodly number of rural dwellings such as this.)

This particular house had a spacious kitchen, dining room and parlor on the first floor. The good lady led me to the parlor. She unlocked the door with a large iron key that hung on a nail at the side of the upper frame When the door opened, the room was dark. My hostess hurried to put up the blinds.

Long heavy lace curtains graced the tall windows and trailed the floor. There was a peculiar pent up odor, characteristic of the family, but even more so. On the floor was an expensive gorgeously patterned brussels carpet, so that our footsteps made no sound.

"We keep the blinds down not to fade the carpet," she explained apologetically. "If I'd known you were coming . ."

A worn old spinning wheel stood in one corner. "It came from Bavaria," she told me proudly. "My great grandmother used it before her father came over here She used to say it would always weave dreams," and she touched it with affection.

A quaint melodeon stood by the partition wall. "My father's great uncle carved it," she said. "It came across the water, too Nobody has ever played it, that I've heard. It needs repairing, but isn't that case grand?"

On the wall hung portraits of two ancestral groups . . . "My folks and his'n," she said. Both men were intelligent appearing and mightily bewhiskered. The women were middle aged, gracious and very feminine. Six children in one picture, eight in the other.

"And what do you use this room for now?" I asked.

"To tell you the truth, for weddings and funerals mostly," she admitted. With a corner of her apron she whisked a bit of dust from a chair back. "Sam, my husband, says there's no use keeping up a room that's too good to use. Not that I mean anything here is too good for that—but a man doesn't understand that a body needs some things kept precious. Here comes Sam now—he will show you around the barn."

As I went down the hall with Sam, she was locking the parlor door.

CHAPTER XXI

"Hold your fire, men!" called Jeff, the colored pantryman.

"Yes, sir!"

"Hyahs you cawfee and sandwiches, gents!—Nice and hot!"

"Jeff! Get out of here! Lie down! Lie down!"

"Cain't lay down, Mistah O'Reilly! Cain't spill this cawfee, suh!"

"Here, Jeff! Git in back of me!" One Round Kid Ahearn shoved the pantryman behind him. The tray crashed to the deck.

"He's getting ready to bomb! Watch out! Here they come!"

"Fire! Let 'em have it!"

As the .50 calibres went hammering into action, the Merchant Mariner trembled to a terrific explosion. A white column leaped mast-high beside her and then collapsed, deluging the decks in tons of falling water. An instant later, the plane's nose jerked violently upward, as though the pilot was deliberately trying to snap its wings off. The outer right hand motor burst into flame.

"Got him!" screamed Goldberg, squinting through his sights and continuing to pour bullets into the disabled plane. "Got him! Ah! There! There he goes!"

The great plane struck the water with a mighty splash, disintegrating under the impact. All that remained of her was a wing pontoon, a fragment of an aileron and a smear of oil on the sea.

Hyman Goldberg snapped down the safety on his gun, walked to the rail and surveyed the debris. Then he spat in its direction. "Okay, you smalltime Nazi punks!" he said. "I guess that'll learn ya not to muscle in on my territory!"

"Mistah O'Reilly, suh! Mistah O'Reilly, suh!"

"Yes, Jeff! What's the matter, boy—did they get you?"

"No, suh, but Ah-Ah cain't get out from under Mistah Ahearn!"

In a pitiful welter of coffee, sandwiches and his own blood, One Round Kid Ahearn lay sprawled across the shipmate he had died to save.

* * *

From the bridge, Captain Elder looked down at the flag-covered coffin and the three ranks of men formed around in under the bombers on the well deck. Ensign O'Reilly raised his head and saluted. "All ready, Captain!" he called.

"Very well, Mr. Rossi, you can stop her!"

The telegraph bell clanged dully in the engine room and the smooth rumble of machinery was stilled. As the ship lost way, one heard the swish of water against her sides. She came to a stop, swaying gently, and then the only sounds were the faint creaking of the hull, the whisper of the wind through the stays and the mewing of the snow-white Arctic gulls which circled lazily in the sunshine.

Prayer book in hand, Elder went slowly down the ladder. He removed his cap and took his place beside the coffin. For a moment he stood with his eyes closed, as though listening for something in the silence. Then he nodded, as though hearing it. He opened the prayer book and read—read with great feeling, for he was moved profoundly. His emotion was shared by his audience. He neared the end.

". . . Forasmuch as it has pleased Almighty God of His great wisdom to take unto himself the soul of our dear brother here departed, we therefore commend his body to the deep to be turned into corruption, looking forward for the resurrection of the body when the sea shall give up its dead . . ."

He raised his hand.

"To God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost. Amen!"

The coffin slid forward on the trestles and disappeared over the side, the folds of the flag caressing it to the last. There was the sound of a splash.

Captain Elder drew a long breath and snapped his prayer book closed. Then he turned and looked up at the bridge.

"Okay, Mr. Rossi—get her under way!"

The telegraph bell clanged dully in the engine room. The machinery took up its smooth rumble. The Merchant Mariner resumed her pilgrimage to Murmansk.

Later that day, Jeff Caldwell, was seated at the pantry table, polishing spoons, but his heart was not in his work. As he dropped them one by one into the drawer—"He died for me!" he repeated over and over, as though unable to believe it. "A man—a white man—died for me! Of course, Ah know a White Man died for all of us and his blessed name was Jesus. But Ah—Ah never expected, Ah never dreamed a white man would die for me—puhsonally!"

But presently he nodded and sat up straight, as though convinced of something. "Yes, it's true! It's exactly like Stanislawski said! A colored boy has got a chance in America, same as anybody else! It's simply up to me to make the most of mah opportunity! Er—Er—Hello, Mistah Benny—This is . . ., this is . . ."

Jeff Caldwell buried his face in his hands and wilted to the table, sobbing.

* * *

The inter-com telephone in the wheelhouse jangled, Elder, who was nearest, picked it up.

"Bridge! — Commanding Officer!" he said. Simultaneously he heard O'Reilly's voice come in: "Gun platform!"

"Lookout aloft!" the caller identified himself. "There's a small dark floating object dead ahead! — About three miles.—Looks like a life raft, sir!"

"Right! Keep your eye on it and report!" ordered O'Reilly, promptly and completely taking charge of the situation. "All other lookout stations! Ignore object ahead and watch your own sectors only!—This may be a trap! . . . Captain Elder! Change course fifteen degrees to port, so I can bring the gun to bear. Vary speed from FULL AHEAD to DEAD SLOW every thirty seconds and stand ready to dodge torpedoes!"

As the vessel cautiously approached the raft, it became apparent that its passengers were in sore distress. One of them, utterly succumbed, lay sprawled on his face with his arm dangling in the water. The other, propped up on his elbow, continued to make feeble beckoning signs until the effort became too much for him; then he, too, collapsed.

"Poor devils!" said Elder. "They're too far gone to catch a line. You'll have to lower a boat and pick them up, Mr. Rossi."

"Okay, sir!" The mate blew his whistle and tightened his life jacket. "All right, you guys!—Man Number One boat!"

Shortly, the castaways were picked up, the lifeboat was hoisted to its davits and the ship put back on her course. Elder left the bridge and went aft to the sick bay, where he found Jeff reviving the sufferers with hot rum and coffee.

"Ach, Captain!" whispered the taller of the two, and even in his present plight it was apparent that he was an officer. "Captain! I cannot begin to tell you how grateful we are! Seventy-two hours we have floated on that raft since the damned submarine sunk us! Seventy-two hours we . . . Ach, but pardon me, Captain!" he sat up feebly and bowed. "I must introduce myself!—I am Captain Cornelius Eckhout, until three days ago Master of the Nederland Oostze Company's motorship Amersfoort, of Flushing!" He bowed again, this time less feebly.

"Well, you've had plenty of hard luck, Captain Eckhout! My name's Elder," he extended his hand. "You're on the Merchant Mariner, U. S. Maritime Commission, New York to Murmansk."

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Salad Crops for Fall Use From Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

Many of the finest greens for salad use can be gathered from the Victory garden in the fall. Endive, lettuce and Chinese cabbage all grow well in cool weather. The chief advantage of fall harvested salad greens is that there is less tendency for them to go to seed. In the case of endive it becomes much sweeter as the cool weather advances and loses much of its bitter taste with the first light frost.

As illustraated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, two popular types of celery or Chinese cabbage are Chihli and Wong Bok. Chihli has a long, compact head which resembles celery when the outer leaves are removed. It has crisp flesh and a nutty flavor. The leaves are very thin, slightly wrinkled, considerably veined and of a light green color. Wong Bok has a broad, solid, compact head which is self-closing and does not need to be tied up.

For a fall crop of Chinese cabbage seed can be sown as late as the middle of August. It is best to sow the seed where the plants are to mature to avoid the setback caused by transplanting them.

Chinese cabbage can be served raw in salads or a cole slaw or it may be cooked and served like cabbage.

MANSFIEL DBUSINESS IN REVIEW

Half Century of Hospitality Credited to Hotel Southern

Tap Room With Old English Air Popular With Mansfielders.

Southern hospitality is more than a traditional phrase at Mansfield's Hotel Southern. It has been a policy of the management for more than half a century during which time the hotel has earned an enviable reputation as one of the outstanding hostelries in North Central Ohio.

Built over fifty years ago when Mansfield was a fledgling city, Hotel Southern faces the refreshing green of Central park, in close proximity to the shopping district.

Its name has been changed by its three successive owners each of whom, however, has adherred closely to its policy of old fashioned hospitality and friendly concern for the comfort of each individual guest.

The hotel was purchased in 1920 by its present co-owners, Carl W. Horchler, resident manager, and Philip E. Schmutzler. Numerous improvements have been made in intervening years, all 80 of the guest rooms having recently been completely redecorated.

The enervating coolness of these large, well ventilated rooms with their high ceilings and tasteful furnishings make them particularly attractive, not only to trancient guests but also to those wishing the convenience of permanent hotel homes.

In fact, a number of folk who came to Mansfield as visitors, Mr. Horschler states, have found it so pleasant at Hotel Southern . . . the rates for permanent guests so attractive, that they are staying on indefinitely.

Horschler points out, too, that transients, appreciate the beauty of Central park as few Mansfielders do and enjoy the location of Hotel Southern.

Greeting guests at the desk and attending with studied interest to the whims of each Hotel Southern guest, are Albert Strater, retired hardware merchant and E. Everett Lowry whose long personal experience as a commercial salesman makes him particularly alert to the desires of the man on the road whose home is his hotel.

Mr. Horschler says that many other reports from satisfied guests he attributes to the proficiency of his housekeeper and her maids who have been in his employ for 7, 8 and 9 years respectively.

The Hotel Southern dining room, open from 4 p. m. to 9:30 p. m., also comes in for its share of praise, Horschler says. Its success, he believes, is due to the culinary art of the Southern's head cook, Bernice White, and her assistant, Grace Shellenberger, and to the pleasant efficiency of their waitress, Myrtle Hildebrand.

Its paneled walls and sturdy furnishings suggesting an Old English tavern, is unreservedly one of the most popular fun spots in Mansfield. "Dad" Siemmer, a genial gentleman thoroughly skilled in the intricacies of drink mixing, presides with aplomb over the bar which boasts a real assortment of liquors despite present shortages.

Rooms for group meetings of clubs, sororities and lodges are available by appointment with the hotel management.

The Southern Cocktail lounge,

O. A. Getz, gem expert now associated with the Shaw Jewelry Company, is shown above.

GEM EXPERT WITH SHAW JEWELRY CO.

A. O. Getz Recognized Writer For Mineral and Gem Magazines.

The effort devoted to the scientific study of minerals and gems has brought A. O. Getz, now of the Shaw jewelry company, many satisfying rewards. He has been awarded associate membership in four gem societies, of these the American Gem society is possibly the best known. He is also a recognized writer for several mineral and gem magazines.

Getz is intensely interested in athletics of all kinds. He was formerly boxing instructor at the Y. M. C. A., here. The two activities, gems and athletics, are not so divergent as they might appear, he says, each reveals intimate details of a person's character.

Getz recently operated the Getz Gem salon in the Walpark building, dealing exclusively in foreign and oriental gems. The war stopped the importation of many of these, he explains.

DEATH CLAIMS BERT A. BRANDT

CRESTLINE — Bert A. Brandt 63, died Friday at Emergency hospital. He had suffered a cerlebral hemorrhage Friday morning while at work.

Surviving besides his widow is a sister Mrs. Charles Libens of Crestline.

He was a member of the Methodist church and the Masons. For the past 15 years he was employed by the city and was a former street commissioner.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2:30 p. m. from the Robert Beck funeral home.

Rev. Olin F. Hull pastor of the Methodist church will officiate.

Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

WILLARD MAN TAKEN BY DEATH

WILLARD — Frank R. Gilhouser, 50, master mechanic at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad shops was found dead in bed at his rooming place Friday. A heart attack was the cause of death according to Huron County Coroner J. D. Bradish.

When he failed to appear at his office fellow employes went to his room and found him.

He was a native of Garrett, Ind., and was transferred here five months ago from Cincinnati. The body was sent to Garrett for funeral services.

YOUNGER SET GIVE PARTIES FOR TWO

Miss Virginia Balyeat and Miss Katherine Steil, Brides-Elect, Are Being Feted This Month at Parties.

TWO BRIDES-ELECT of July 31 are being feted at many lovely parties given by the younger set this month. The honorees are Miss Virginia Balyeat, who will wed Denzel Schaaf, and Miss Katherine Steil, whose marriage to Lieut. Robert Neese of Columbus, Miss., will be solemnized at the Grace Episcopal church.

Last evening Miss Faye Sotherland and Mrs. R. A. Rowlands, aunts of Miss Balyeat, entertained for her at the former's home, Sturges avenue. The affair was a dessert-bridge at four tables. Appointments were dainty in pink and white.

Score gifts were awarded to Miss Harriett Johnston of Rochester, N. Y., who is spending the summer in Mansfield, Miss Patty Bancroft, Miss Jane McFadden and Miss Mercile Schaaf. The hostesses gave Miss Balyeat a personal gift.

Earlier in the week the Tom Ford home, Alta road, was the scene of a party honoring Miss Balyeat and Miss Steil.

Mrs. Katherine Bancroft and daughter, Patty, were hostesses to a mothers' bridge club and their daughters. The bridge club was formed years ago when the women were in high school and in recent years their daughters had formed a club of their own.

Three tables of bridge were in play at that time with score prizes being won by Miss Balyeat and Miss Emily Holland. The hostesses prepared recipe books which the mothers filled in during the social hour. Yellow and white appointments were used for the refreshment tables. Crystal tapers and daisies formed attractive centerpiece for the small tables. Mrs. Bancroft and daughter presented the honorees with gifts.

WILLING WORKERS MEET.

The Willing Workers of the Little Washington church met Thursday for an all-day meeting. The monthly birthday party was held. Those honored at that time were Miss Judy McFarland, Mrs. May Lutz, and Rev. John Payton. One guest, Mrs. Dan Koozer of Mansfield, was present. The regular business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Earl Scheier. Mrs. Verne Richey had charge of devotions. The group will meet again on July 15.

Garden Club Has Luncheon at Home Of Mrs. Meihack

A paper on "Pit Storage" was given by Miss Louise Krause when the members of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club were entertained with a luncheon at the home of Mrs. A. W. Meihack, Park avenue west, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. H. B. Sanford presided over the luncheon table which was centered with a green bowl of garden flowers. Twenty-one members and one guest, Mrs. Arthur Reeves of Congress Lake, were in attendance.

The president, Mrs. C. P. Siegenthaler, announced that the county harvest show is to be held Sept. 11-12. Mrs. Tom Ford was appointed to be the club's representative for the show. Mrs. W. B. Ford, who is in charge of the canned goods, asked that members display home canned goods.

The July 30 meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. A. L. Smith. Each member is requested to bring flowers from her garden which will be used to make hats at that time.

WILLING CLUB MEETS.

Miss Christine Hecht entertained members of the Willing club Thursday at her home. Nine members and two guests were present for the covered-dish dinner. Following a business meeting a contest was held with the prize being won by Miss Henrietta Robinson. The next meeting will be held Aug. 12 with Mrs. Emma Heichel as hostess for a covered-dish dinner.

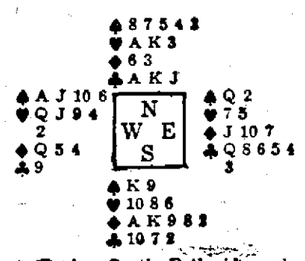
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FAVOR UNBID MAJORS

More and more strong defensive players are favoring the lead of an unbid major suit against a No Trump game, in preference to their own long minor suit, especially if the minor is headed by a king or queen. Leading away from it may give the declarer the one trick he needs to make his contract. The unbid major doubleton or trebleton is pretty likely to be their partner's suit, and pays frequent dividends if your own hand is weak enough so that your partner probably holds some honor strength for re-entries.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	3 NT

Identical bidding was done at both tables of a team match where this hand was dealt, and the result depended entirely on the opening lead. It is quite obvious that a spade lead cannot be considered, with North bidding that suit, and neither could a diamond, in view of South's bid and rebid; so the choice lay between hearts and clubs.

At one table East opened the club 5, making the J a winner. A diamond trick was ducked to West, and after the heart return North ran game, scoring four tricks in diamonds, three in clubs and two in hearts.

East of the other team opened the heart 7. Of course that put his partner's holding "under the hammer," which would have killed off any single honor or unhappily-placed tenace. But the difference between this and the club lead is that there was a good possibility of consecutive high cards there, much better than that West held some solidifying clubs. Now, no matter how North played, he could not find a ninth trick, as a club finesse was doomed to fail, and the spade K lay under the A. Consequently, he was set a trick.

Mrs. H. M. Keene Gives Paper at Club Meeting

Mrs. H. M. Keene was guest speaker at the picnic meeting of the Mansfield Garden Study club Friday noon at Middle park at which time Mrs. L. D. Bower and Mrs. D. E. Patterson were hostesses.

Mrs. E. C. Jenkins introduced Mrs. Keene, who read an original poem, "A Flower Romance," and gave a paper entitled "Legend of the Flowers," which was based on a paper prepared by Mrs. Harold Shaw.

Mrs. W. O. Leedy was welcomed into the club as a new member. There were thirteen members and two guests, Mrs. Keene, who is a member of the Astowela Garden club, and Mrs. Charles Matti.

During the business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Clarence Lisle, a report on the victory garden harvest show was given. Mrs. George Hout also spoke on the black market and the danger of rumor.

Mrs. Charles Birch of Norwalk will be hostess for the July 23 meeting. She will also have the topic for the day on "Native Trees."

Home Circle Has Annual Picnic At Johns Park

The annual picnic of the Mothers Home circle was held Friday noon at Johns park with the officers in charge of the dinner and the afternoon meeting.

The program was opened with the salute to the flag and the group singing of patriotic songs including the national anthem. Various contests were held.

Mrs. Ed Smith won the Bible quiz, Mrs. Ethel Conn the radio quiz, Mrs. F. B. Poling the riddles, Mrs. C. C. Vermilya the rose quiz, and Mrs. H. A. Rudolph the singing contest.

The group decided to have a poke lunch instead of a cooked dinner for the next meeting on August 13 at North Lake park pavilion. Coffee, sugar, tea, and cream will be furnished.

Bride of April Feted on Friday

Mrs. Gene Lewis, nee Mary Van Arnhem, whose marriage was an event of April 5, was honored at a post-nuptial party last evening. Hostess for the miscellaneous shower was Mrs. Paul Gruver, Coolridge Heights.

Nine guests were present and spent the evening playing pinochle. Score gifts were won by Mrs. Sidney Williams and Mrs. Harry McLelland. At a late hour a luncheon was served at small tables decorated with bowls of mixed garden flowers and appointments in a pink and blue color scheme.

The guests surprised Mrs. Lewis with a shower of gifts and the hostess gave her a wedding gift.

FIREMEN DONATE ENGINE

BERKELEY, Cal. —(U.P.)— With the city short on fire engines—and on cash therefor—members of the Berkeley fire department collected scrap parts, borrowed tools from industrial plants and, working at night, built a complete fire engine which they have presented to the city for wartime emergency use. Officials estimate a new engine of the same type would cost the city $4,500.

Men Do Not Like Untidy Girl Friends

By MME. QUI VIVE

He was a swell young fellow, spick and span. He looked like a two - showers - a - day guy. You couldn't imagine his letting the hair cut go a day beyond the date for shearing. He was sitting among some older people and the girl question came up. The topic got around to the general attractiveness of the Sweet Thing of 1943.

"Well," said he, "love may sometimes be blind, but sometimes it has the eye of an eagle. I was plain sappy about a girl last summer. A smart, clever lassie. Always gay, always giving you an opportunity to tell what a fine fellow you are. But I walked out of her life and never came back.

I'll tell you why. One day the thought came to me that I'd like to kiss the back of her neck. She was bending over, tying her shoe lace. And what do you think? Her neck was not strictly clean. And her hair had that sour odor that hair has when it isn't washed often. A few minutes later she dragged out a powder pad that looked like something the dog had dug up. That settled me, for keeps. I never saw her again."

"Until that time I was all for asking her to marry me," he continued, "but I knew what I would be in for. An untidy home, a sloppy-looking wife with scrambled hair, dishes standing in the sink. Me, I'm all for neatness, law and order. I couldn't stand it. She never knew, I fancy, why I made a get-away. Too bad. I know a chap who was crazy about a girl until he noticed that a button on her coat was put on with a safety pin. Sounds silly, but I can understand it. Small things like that are significant."

There's something for the careless girl to think about. You know her. Easy-going, good-natured, but not up to snuff regarding daintiness of person. Thinks she can skip the daily bath if she uses plenty of perfume. Has powder marks on her collar, stray hairs on her shoulder. That sort of thing won't do. The standard of grooming is high. It is expected that a girl shall be fastidious about appearance.

Prince Charming can overlook a lot of faults; maybe thinks they are cute. But soiled finger nails, spotty makeup, purses that are a mess take off the edge off his romance.

DOG WAITS AT STATION

ERIE, Pa. —(U.P.)— A sorrowful chow dog is making Union Station his home until his master, drafted into the army returns. "Chow," as he is called by friendly station attaches, appeared at the station when his unidentified soldier-boy boarded a train with a group of selectees and, now, hopeful of his master's safe return, he's waiting patiently.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

There was such amused contempt in Dicky's voice that I was not surprised to see Ruth Hayes start, and rear her head upward as if some venomous insect had suddenly stung her.

Evidently she had learned her lesson, however, for she made no move to leave her chair. Being both shrewd and experienced, she knew that as long as she attempted no physical violence, Dicky would not offer any to her, no matter what she said.

"That's what my friends have been pleased to call me,—the Wilderness Woman!" she said, and from the way she savored the syllables, I realized that she cherished the nickname. "What's wrong with it?" she snarled suddenly, and the intonation in her voice reminded me of the sound I once had heard coming from the throat of a wild cat in the New Hampshire mountains.

"It's really an alluring name," he went on. "It pictures someone strong and capable, competent to deal with any unusual emergency, and with a real love for the wilds. And as far as that goes, I imagine that you live up to the name."

Through the crack in my door, I saw Ruth Hayes involuntarily preen herself at the supposed compliment. But the next second she must have been sadly disillusioned, for Dicky continued with his deflating process.

"But," he said, "one trait with which popular opinion invests a wilderness woman is squareness—a sense of fair play—which never would permit its owner to lower herself to the practices in which you have indulged."

"What do you mean?" Again I noted the snarl in her voice, and felt that I must be on the alert. Dicky was goading her almost beyond endurance, and she not only was an impatient woman, but one whose repertoire boasted every treacherous trick of the wilds.

"It would take a longer time than I have to tell you all I mean," Dicky replied airily, "but I can outline a few high spots."

He paused, and poising the thumb of his right hand against the fingers and thumb of his left, made ready to tick off his points.

"First of all," he said, "I would cite the despicable campaign of lies, deceit and treachery you launched against Jack Bickett, because your colossal self-conceit could not endure the repulse he gave you."

In the old wives' phraseology, I thought the Wilderness Woman would burst as she heard this speech of Dicky's.

"You cheap liar!" she stormed. "He never repulsed me. Instead ——"

"Oh—yeah?" Dicky interrupted her sharply, and no street gamin ever gave the response a more insolent accent. "Well, now, I've heard tell different."

"Oh, of course!" She was snarling again. "From that mushy Katharine, I suppose! But she knows better. She has proof—"

"You mean what you meant her to believe was proof." Dicky's voice was suddenly steely. "That wonderfully and fearfully built-up lying letter you sent her."

"Every word of which was the truth, only she wasn't sport enough to accept it,—the spiritless parasite!" she retorted viciously.

"Every word of which was a lie," Dicky said sternly, "and I will tell you one thing now, Mrs. Bickett is not my authority for that. She has never told me anything about her troubles, and she did not show me the letter."

"But her friend, your wife, did!" Ruth Hayes snapped.

"Granted!" Dicky conceded. "She and I, knowing Jack Bickett as we do, found it most amusing reading, even though it aroused our anger and contempt."

"I can't believe the high-souled Madge found it so amusing," Ruth Hayes sneered. "I understand that she and Jack used to carry the torch for each other in the old days—and perhaps," she added tauntingly, "the lady still keeps it lighted!"

Carl H. Heilman Guest Speaker At Garden Club

Mrs. P. E. Sturges, 560 Overlook road, assisted by Mrs. G. W. Stevens, and Mrs. C. F. Routzahn was hostess for the meeting of the Mansfield Garden club Friday afternoon.

The program for the afternoon was in charge of Carl H. Heilman. He showed slides on flower arrangements. A talk was also given by Miss Emma Waring from the Civilian Defense.

Floral arrangements were placed around the room. The dining table was centered with a bowl of roses. Mrs. Wallace Campbell and Mrs. J. A. Rigby served.

The next meeting will be on July 23 at the home of Mrs. W. Hamilton Walter, Brinkerhoff avenue. The associate hostesses will be Mrs. Carville Gorman and Mrs. G. C. Smith.

Initiate New Members Friday At Eagles Hall

Members of the Ladies' auxiliary of the Eagles lodge met at the Eagle hall Friday evening for regular session in charge of Mrs. Kenneth Dougherty. Formal initiation of five new members, Mrs. Paul Rist Mrs. James Hoppe, Mrs. Jesse Carpenter, Mrs. Rose Yuncker and Mrs. Esther Pittenger, was held.

The drill team led by Mrs. William Keller was in charge of the rituals. The hall was attractively decorated for the occasion with baskets of roses and sweetpeas and tall lighted tapers.

Mrs. Al Brillhart and Mrs. Blymyer were appointed for the visiting committee for July, and Mrs. Keller will be in charge of tax stamps.

Plans were made to hold a picnic Aug. 9 at South park. Arrangements will be in charge of Miss Ethyle Duffee and her committee, Mrs. Peter Herold, Mrs. Conrad Kalbfleisch and Miss Catherine Heichel.

Victory prizes were won by Mrs. Raymond Fisher and Mrs. Wayne Wharton. The door prize was awarded to Mrs. Nellie Winters.

Plans were made to have a rummage sale soon in charge of Mrs. Earl Stutz, Mrs. Harry Emmons and Mrs. Inez Spiker.

The next meeting will be held at the lodge hall July 23 at 8 p. m.

CLASS MEETS.

The Adult class of the East Mansfield United Presbyterian church met Thursday night at the church. Forty members were present. The business session was conducted by the president. A piano solo was played by Mrs. Nellie Roush from Columbus.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, July 11.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds signs of a very lively and exciting condition although these may not be deemed of much profit, gratification or happiness. The beneficial aspects may be negated by a tendency to reckless extravagances of the energies and emotions as well as funds. With restraint, conservative conduct and thrift there may be pleasant relations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a lively and exciting year, in which the energies and substance may be squandered in lavish or excessive indulgence, bound to beget resentment, jealousy, strife and reprisals. Shun emotional outbursts, over indulgences and prodigality if happiness, success and personal equanimity are to be preserved.

A child born on this day may be energetic and progressive but may be defeated in its progress by its own tempestuous, extravagant, impulsive and indulgent behavior. This may seriously becloud its domestic happiness.

For Monday, July 12.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast shows very lively and progressive opportunities for forging ahead on new and ambitious projects, especially those concerning travel, communications, publishing, promotions and legal affairs, but certain opposing forces are aligned against desired success and happy development of brilliant ideas and progress. Placate these by reason, make clear and logical efforts to solve peculiar difficulties, as the mind may be obscure and speech caustic.

Those whose birthday it is may have excellent opportunity for brilliant success and progress in new directions, especially in connection with writings, publicity, travel, communications. However there is some group or public antagonism trying to block such achievement. This should be amicably composed, and with logic and reason, not erratic moves or sarcastic and bitter remarks. Be polite.

A child born on this day may have brilliant ideas and unusual versatility, particularly in intellectual professions. It may have a caustic tongue.

PRESERVING OF FOODS DISCUSSED AT MEET

Nutrition Representative Speaks at Luncheon Party of Cottage Garden Club Members Friday Afternoon.

M. D. Miller, representative from the Ohio Public Service company, affiliated with the range and nutrition department, was the guest speaker yesterday when Cottage Garden club members were entertained at the home of Mrs. C. F. Sheriff, 420 Sherman place. She was assisted by Mrs. D. J. Lamneck.

Mr. Miller gave an informative talk on "Preservation of Fruits and Vegetables, Other Than By Canning." He displayed and explained how dehydrators are made and showed the general operation of the article. He also discussed "Brining and Pit Storage."

Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock to 24 members and three guests, Mrs. J. B. Squires of Lakewood, Mrs. George Hoover and Mrs. J. H. Sheriff.

The home was decorated with many bouquets of garden flowers. On the mantle in front of a large mirror was a beautiful arrangement of red roses and white Madonna lilies.

The speaker for the meeting was introduced by Mrs. B. F. Hagelbarger. Business was in charge of Mrs. S. A. Richardson.

On July 23 the club will meet at the home of Mrs. J. H. Petree, 555 Yale drive, with Mrs. H. G. Miller as associate. The topic will be "Herbs," given by Mrs. J. B. Conard.

Gamma Chapter Meets for Bridge

Mrs. Robert Brollier, Sloane avenue, entertained members of the Gamma Chapter of Tri Gamma sorority Thursday evening at her home. Assocaite hostess was Miss Jane Cunningham. One guest, Mrs. John McCabe of Murfreesboro, Tenn., who was formerly a member of the Mansfield group, was in attendance.

Contract was the diversion with the prize being won by Mrs. J. B. Kemp, jr. When refreshments were served at small tables garden flowers were used for decorations.

The group will meet for a social meeting in the club rooms next Thursday.

Tells Girl To Be Frank With Fiance

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 21 years of age, and ever since I was 16 I've had to sneak around to meet the boys. I never was allowed to go with my own choice, but had to go with those my parents liked. I am engaged, but since then I have met someone I love more. Do you think I should tell the boy I'm engaged to? He's overseas now and has been for three years. When we first became engaged, he always said if I met someone I like more, he would give me my freedom.

I don't want to get married, but intend to wait until after the war. Also, my boy friend may be having a good time, and perhaps he'll be glad to break the engagement too. Three years is a long time, and a great many things may happen. K. L. M.

While it may be cruel to break an engagement with a soldier overseas, the bitter draught may be the best medicine, if you no longer love him. I judge from what you write me that he's not as ardent toward you as he was in the beginning. It may be that he would welcome a release.

If you really have fallen out of love with your soldier boy and he has told you that if you meet someone you like better to call it off, you have no reason to hesitate about writing him an honest, frank letter about it. There's no excuse for deceiving him.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About two years ago I received a shock to my nervous system and since then I have never been the same. My nerves are jumpy all the time and I stay away from friends and neighbors because I am ashamed of the way I act. I have a nice home and a good husband who is always willing to help in any way he can to get me back to my normal self.

Sometimes I feel as though I can't go on another minute. I'm afraid that something will snap. I'm willing to do anything you suggest. So much of the time I go around in a daze. I know where I am and what I'm doing, but everything isn't clear to me. Please offer your advice.

W. O.

Apart from treatment by a specialist, you can do much for yourself. Perhaps you do not have a garden, or pay devoted attention to one. If you can't have your own garden, sign up with some Victory Garden workers in your home town. There's nothing like delving in the earth, planting things, and seeing them grow to restore people to a normal point of view.

The remedy in your case is "anything to get you out of yourself." If the garden work is out of the question, try to assist in a Red Cross unit, or enlisting for some type of selfless war work. Today, the country has need of every pair of hands. Forget yourself in working for peace and freedom.

* * *

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX;

I'm 26 years old and have fallen in love with a man who loves me just as much. However, he's 36 years old and thinks there's too much difference in our ages. Both of us have been married before. I know we could be happy together because we have so much in common. What do you think?

G. M.

A man really in love does not consider that a difference of ten years puts him at a disadvantage. And of course, it does not. It may be that he is one of the long-engagement boys who waste a girl's time and youth. Better make sure he means what he says.

Woodville Club Has Three Guests

Twenty-one members of the Woodville Social club and three guests, Mrs. Henry Tucker, Miss Lois Addlesperger and Miss Elaine Bowden, were entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Minnie McCullough, South Main street. Associate hostess was Mrs. Albert Taylor.

Bunco was the diversion with prizes being won by Mrs. Howard Calver and Mrs. Donald Bowden. Mrs. Tucker won the guest prize.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. The next meeting will be held Aug. 6 at the home of Mrs. W. G. Perry, South Main street. Mrs. Taylor will be the associate hostess.

Frankie Balbaugh, manager of the Westinghouse softball team, was seen running around Ashland one day this week, frantically trying to urge Ashland softballers to get together a team that could beat his Westies.

Now it is well known to one and all that Frankie is not the kind of a guy who would thoroughly enjoy seeing his Westies take a licking. In fact this sort of thing could be expected to cause him to weep great globules of tears, and if lickings for Westinghouse should become a habit, Frankie undoubtedly would lose much sleep and become very sad indeed.

But Frankie stoutly maintains that there is method in his madness.

* * *

What he wants is a free trip to the world series this fall.

Winning team in the Westinghouse inter-plant softball tournament has been promised the world series trip, and Frankie sees a chance for the veteran Mansfield team to win the tournament.

But he realizes that the kind of competition the Westies have been getting in Mansfield's industrial league is not strong enough to prepare them for the plant tourney.

* * *

So Frankie dodges about the countryside looking for a team to beat his Westies, figuring that kind of competition will be good for them. Is it all clear now?

Mansfield baseball fans who have been looking in vain at American association box scores for the name of Stan Partenheimer, Mansfield southpaw hurler, need look no longer.

Reporting to Louisville from Wooster college at the close of school this spring, Partenheimer didn't expect to see much action with the Colonels.

Already enlisted in the army reserve, Stan could see the long finger of Uncle Sam beckoning him to service, and that's where he has landed.

But he's still pitching. His record now shows three consecutive victories for the Fort Hayes team in Columbus.

* * *

Among the youngsters who have been looking very good on Coach Paul Brown's "high school football team" in summer practice at Ohio State university is Jack Crider, star halfback of the Canton McKinley Bulldogs.

Starting next Wednesday, Crider will "look very good" in the uniform of Uncle Sam's army, reporting for service at Fort Hayes.

Brinkerhoff Jrs. Beat Johns Park

Brinkerhoff scored six runs in the third inning and romped over Johns Park 14-9 in a Junior Parks softball league tilt yesterday, as the losers tallied eight of their nine runs in the last three frames.

Theesen got two home runs for Brinkerhoff, and Bechtler and Amsbaugh one each.

Paul's Friendly Store took a forfeit decision from South Boulevard.

Detroit Sets Hot Win Pace

Tigers Drive Toward American League Lead.

By TED MEIER
(AP Sports Writer)

The Detroit Tigers, in a drive reminiscent of their surge to the 1940 pennant, may oust the New York Yankees from first place in the American league this weekend.

Victorious in 11 of their last 13 starts, the aroused Bengals have zoomed upwards from the second division into second place only two games behind the pace-setting Yanks. With the New Yorkers and the third place Chicago White Sox listed to slug it out in successive doubleheaders today and tomorrow, the Tigers could take over the lead by sweeping the three game series with the last place Philadelphia Athletics even if the Yanks win one.

* * *

The Tigers already have beaten the A's twice, their latest conquest over Connie Mack's hirelings being a 4 to 0 shutout last night. Hal White twirled a four-hitter. Rookie Dick Wakefield became the first major leaguer to reach the 100-hit mark with a second inning single.

* * *

In the National league, Mort Cooper of the first place St. Louis Cardinals set down the Boston Braves with three singles for a 7-0 shutout.

Brooklyn temporarily staved off Pittsburgh's challenge for second place by coming from behind twice to beat the Pirates, 8 to 7, in a wild and wooly 10-inning game.

A squeeze play brought Washington a 1 to 0 13-inning triumph over Cleveland after Dutch Leonard and Jim Bagby hooked up in a scoreless pitching duel for 12 innings. Bob Johnson walked to start the 13th, raced to third on Alex Kampouris' single, and scored on Gerald Priddy's bunt along the first base line.

* * *

Manager Joe Cronin again socked a homer as a pinchhitter, but his effort went for naught when Mike Chartak connected for a ninth inning homer to give the St. Louis Browns a 5 to 4 win over the Boston Red Sox.

* * *

Ernie Lombardi, Giants catcher, hit four singles and a homer in five times at bat. All his effort accomplished, however, was to force the Chicago Cubs to go 12 innings before winning, 5 to 3, on Bill Nicholson's triple.

Cincinnati whacked out six runs in a bix sixth inning to come from behind and beat the Phillies, 11 to 4.

The Yankees and White Sox were idle.

Reserve Drops College Sport

Cancels Eight-Game Football Schedule.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— The war added another casualty in Ohio's intercollegiate sports program today.

Western Reserve university's sports competition, which had continued without interruption since 1890, has ended for the duration of the war, the school's executive committee decided.

Karl Davis, who will retain the title of athletic director, was instructed to formally notify the eight schools booked for football games this fall of the action. They are Youngstown college, Akron, Baldwin-Wallace, Boston university, John Carroll, the University of Cincinnati, Ohio university and Case.

* * *

Basketball also will be dropped and Coach Roy Clifford continued in his position as a full-time physical education instructor in the army training program at the school.

* * *

Football Coach Tom Davies was granted a leave of absence. He has been working for the Jack & Heintz company and indicated he would continue there.

Reserve is the second greater Cleveland college to withdraw from the intercollegiate field. John Carroll has taken similar action but is expected to reconsider and sanction a football schedule involving schools engaged in the navy V-12 program.

In its statement, Reserve's executive committee said the action was taken because of the falling off in undergraduate enrollment.

Deer Hunting for Ohio Considered

PUT-IN-BAY —(AP)— A committee studying the advisability of deer hunting in Ohio told the state conservation and natural resources commission "everything points to such a season," but requested additional time to draft a program.

The report was made during the commission's July meeting here, at which tentative schedules for hunting and trapping seasons in the state were adopted with only minor revisions.

Southern Ohio sportsmen and farmers asked the commission last month to permit a short deer hunting season next fall on the ground that the animals had become so numerous as to cause crop damage in that area.

ALL-STAR FOOTBALL TILT WILL BE PLAYED

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The eighth annual All-Star football game for the benefit of the Herald-Tribune fresh air fund will be played in New York this September despite the limitations of war, it was announced today.

Definite arrangements have not yet been concluded, but the contest will probably be staged at the polo grounds with the New York Giants as the National League representative.

Indians Let Bagby Down

Lose 13-Inning Game To Senators 1 to, 0.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Admiration for this city's lakefront Stadium lessened today among Cleveland's Indians — especially Jim Bagby—after the Washington Nationals squeezed out a 13-inning victory over the Tribe at the municipal arena.

The Redskins have scored just three runs in their last four appearances at the Stadium and in last night's 1 to 0 heartbreaker not one Indian reached third base.

* * *

The setback was doubly bitter to Bagby because not only did the right hander hold the Nats scoreless for 13 innings but in his last three Stadium games he allowed only six runs three in extra innings—and failed to win any of them. In addition, his teammates have provided him with only two runs in the past 33 innings he's pitched.

* * *

The Nationals had runners on base five times during the overtime contest but resorted to a squeeze play in the 13th to force across their run. Bagby's walk to Bob Johnson started it. Alex Kimpouris singled to right and Johnson raced to third. With none out, Jake Early popped up to the infield. Gerald Priddy then bunted down the first base line. Bagby shot the ball to catcher Buddy Rosar but Johnson beat the throw. The play was recorded as a sacrifice and fielder's choice.

The Indians meet the Senators again today at the Stadium in an afternoon game with Vernon Kennedy slated to oppose Washington's Early Wynn on the mound.

SUCH HOSPITALITY

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— This "brotherly love business," for which Philly is known throughout the world, held a concrete meaning for the Cincinnati Reds today.

All of the Reds, with the exception of winning pitcher Clyde Shoun, fattened their batting averages on the offerings of three Phillies pitchers whom they pounded for 16 hits in blasting out a 11 to 4 triumph last night.

* * *

The Reds got enough runs to win the game in the sixth inning when a combination of singles by Max Marshall, Steve Mesner, Eddie Miller, Bert Haas and Gee Walker with a base on balls and a wild pitch by Newton Kimball, the Phillies starting pitcher, netted six big runs.

* * *

The Phillies worked hard on Ed Heusser, who started for Cincinnati, getting 13 safeties off him in the third inning.

Lloyd Dietz, who quelled the Red uprising in the sixth, and Charlie Fuchs, who later replaced him, let in four Red tallies in the remaining three innings.

Manager Bill McKechnie was not certain whether he would start the slipping Bucky Walters or Elmer Riddle in today's contest. Dick Conger, rookie right-hander purchased earlier in the week from Toronto, was Phil Manager Bucky Harris' choice.

OHIO TRAPSHOOTING TOURNAMENT OPENS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio's 57th annual trapshooting championships open at the Columbus Gun club today on a "bring your own ammunition" basis.

The two-day barrage has been halved this year as a result of the wartime shortage of shells. Instead of the 600-target program of last year, only 300 will be used to determine the title-winners.

Contestants were expected to be considerably fewer than last year's national record of 317 because of travel restrictions, but many 1942 stars will compete.

Sore Flipper Benches Wyatt

Dodger Huhler Rests Under Doctor's Orders.

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—John Whitlow Wyatt, the sentimental gentleman from Georgia, shapes up today as baseball's hard luck player of the year, but bursitis has stolen the speed from his blazing fast ball and put both him and the Dodger pennant hopes on the shelf.

* * *

Whit was one of the key men in the attack as the battling Brooks drove to second place in 1940 and to the pennant in 1941. He won 22 games two years ago to help nail the flag to the Ebbets field pole and turned in 19 victories last season as the Dodgers fell short by two games.

* * *

A conscientious workman who loves the game, the soft-spoken Wyatt had ambitions for the club this season. He trained at Hot Springs, Ark., two weeks on his own hook before spring training got under way and was in good shape when the club reported at Bear Mountain, N. Y. But then things began to break badly shortly after the season opened.

His father was ill and Whit rushed back to Buchanan, Ga., losing a week of play—and much of his control. When he began rounding into shape again, his father-in-law, who manages Wyatt's cotton farm, suffered a stroke. Once again the big pitcher was off.

Another week passed before his return and this time he didn't look like the Wyatt of old. Manager Leo Durocher tried resting him longer between turns on the hill and then sent him to Dr. Bob Hyland in St. Louis, while the club continued in Chicago.

On his return Wyatt demanded his share of mound duty, and Durocher, thinking he was ready, sent him out. Although the Dodgers have been referred to as the nine old men, Durocher knew that with such men as Billy Herman, Arky Vaughn and Augie Galan playing good ball, the successful return of Wyatt would be an inspiration to the team. But Whit couldn't come through. That old fast one still rolled up there like a slow freight, and men that should have been fanning were cutting Whit's legs with liners.

* * *

Meanwhile the arm had started to pain and once again Wyatt headed for infirmary. He had won only three games against four defeats, at a point where he had scored eight triumphs against two losses a year ago.

Dr. Michael Deddish diagnosed the ailment as bursitis and ordered two weeks of rest. He said he believed the condition would clear up completely under diathermic treatment, but the statement didn't raise hopes too high in the Dodger camp.

"Dem bums," however, haven't given up hope altogether either. They know that Wyatt came back once before after being forced out of the American league by a sore arm. So they're keeping their fingers crossed in Flatbush, because the Whit Wyatt of old—with his fast one blowing them down — would be a great asset in the hot, harrying days of August and September when the teams go thundering down the stretch.

By WILLIAM A. RUTLEDGE III
(Central Press Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Miss Belita Gladys Olive Lyne Jepson-Turner, athletic English society girl, her fashionable mother and her French maid, were stranded in New York City without a cent four years ago.

Today, this same tall, blonde girl basks in filmdom acclaim as a new Sonja Henie and is quite reconciled to the necessity of having to earn her own way until the war is over and the family income is thawed out in London.

Belita came to the U. S. seeking treatment for a back injury, sustained in a fall on the ice of St. Moritz, Switzerland. Then the war broke out and British currency regulations forbade the export of money. The Jepson-Turner family had extensive investments in Argentina and from them she had an independent income via a London banking house.

The news soon followed that the family estate at Hampshire had been taken over by the government for military purposes. Her father, a major in the British army, wrote that he was back in active service. Her two brothers, Capt. B. W. Jepson-Turner and Maj. R. L. Jepson-Turner, went into the service.

So there was no more income —and no longer a family home.

Belita could do a dozen different things. She could dance in ballets, skate with considerable skill, swim, play a good game of tennis, paint, ski, and, in fact, do most anything a well-bred English society girl could be expected to do.

She earned her first American dollars as an exhibition skater during the intermissions at the National league hockey games in New York City. It was a bare existence for herself, her mother and the maid.

When the hockey season ended, she had to hustle a little harder. Ice Capades was being organized in New York City. Belita skated right into top billing. The troupe toured the nation and wound up a 42-week road trip in Hollywood.

Her skating attracted a producer's attention. He was convinced that she had possibilities for the movies. "Silver Skates" was her first starring vehicle, in which she was co-starred with Singer Kenny Baker. Her second skating production is on the studio schedule under a contract for two ice pictures a year.

Belita insists that she's a better ballet dancer than an ice skater. Daily she takes lessons in ballet and hasn't abandoned her girlhood ambition to become a stage dancer of renown. To keep up her tennis she plays the game frequently with "Big Bill" Tilden and Don Budge, both former national champions.

Skating is one of the most popular of public sports in England, she reports. In London there are 12 skating auditoriums. Ice skating, she says, is as common as roller skating in this country, or bicycle riding.

She contends that skating is, and can be, an art—one of the arts as much as dancing, painting or singing. Her specialty is dance interpretations of modern musical pieces on the ice.

Skating does not require strong ankles, Belita declares, and says that she has comparatively weak ankles. As she has written scores of movie fan writers who have asked for skating advice, the secret of success on the ice is in boots and balance—not the ankles. Good fitting skate shoes and a sense of balance will keep anyone on the ice in good style, she declares.

Both brothers have become officers with the British Eighth army. One, Capt. R. L. Jepson-Turner, lost an arm in the North African campaign and was awarded the D.S.O. and advanced in rank to a major.

Now Belita doesn't care much what happens to the family's investments in Argentina. She's doing all right in Hollywood.

Fastest Trotting Mile of Season

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The fastest time registered by a trotter this season was recorded at North Randall's Grand Circuit meet yesterday.

His excellency, owned by Brooklyn Bill Strang and driven by Tom Berry, won the first heat of the $2,755 Matron stake before the weatherman forced a postponement of further racing until today. His time was 2:06¼.

Smith Becomes Indian Ace

Giant Castoff Rates As Leading Hurler.

By BILL BAILEY

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— The Cleveland Indians' hurling ace, Al Smith, being from Missouri, may have to be shown, but it's a good bet that for the remainder of the season he'll be showing the American league batters a thing or two.

* * *

The New York Giant castoff, who hurled 15 winning games in 1940 when the Tribe almost had its first pennant in 20 years, is shaking loose a tough case of bad luck in the close ones and is now the team's most effective hurler.

* * *

To date, Smith has won seven against two losses—a record that stands close to the top of the league's best pitching performances. His victory Tuesday night stopped a three-game losing streak for the Indians.

Manager Lou Boudreau, who has been plagued by injuries to his players, is counting a lot on Smith to make good his prediction that the Tribe would be the team to beat this season.

"I think he looked as good and better Tuesday night against the Athletics as he did when he was winning all those games back in 1940," Boudreau said.

"Whenever you want a well-pitched ball game," Boudreau said, just call on Smith and he'll come through with a good one for you.

"Smith isn't a guy to do much talking, but he's a real workman out there on the mound."

* * *

Although less effective during the 1941 season when the Tribe finished third in the pennant race, Smith hit perhaps one of the high spots of his career in the majors.

* * *

Smith and Jim Bagby, jr., teamed to do what many another hurler in the American league had been trying to do — stop Joe DiMaggio's consecutive hitting streak.

And stop it they did, splitting honors in holding DiMaggio hitless in four trips to the plate.

Smith features a screwball which comes up to a batter and waves in his face before breaking over the plate. He isn't sensational on speed, but combines what he has with sound pitching sense.

Navy Colleges May Form New League

Mansfield Meeting Tomorrow Called For Schedule Making.

By GRANT DILLMAN

COLUMBUS—(UP)—An entirely new athletic league made up exclusively of colleges with naval trainees may make its bow in Ohio sports circles next fall.

Ohio Wesleyan university Athletic Director George E. Gauthier said representatives of eight Ohio colleges will meet with navy officials at Mansfield tomorrow to discuss the proposed league.

The idea of an unofficial "duration" league for navy training colleges developed, Gauthier said, after several coaches expressed doubt that the Ohio conference could operate in the face of player shortages and the army ban on athletics.

* * *

"It looks like the colleges with naval trainees will be the only ones which can carry on an athletic program next year," he said, "so it seemed logical that we should get together and discuss our mutual problems."

* * *

J. J. Smith, of Muskingum college, chairman of the Ohio conference, said, however, that the conference planned to carry on "as far as possible" despite the fact that five schools contemplating the Navy College league are conference members.

"I suppose there'll be some schools that won't be able to have football this year because of the player shortage," Smith said. "It's natural for those who will have programs to start looking around to see who they can play."

Smith said Toledo and John Carroll were the only two conference schools which definitely had abandoned athletics for the duration.

"At our last meeting we decided to carry on the conference athletic program on a normal basis as far as possible," he said.

Gauthier said at least two problems had to be solved before a navy college conference could be launched.

"First of course," he said, "we'll have to work out a plan with the navy so the trainees will have enough time to take part in athletics despite their rigid work schedule.

"But most important will be the financing. Most smaller colleges don't have the funds to carry on an extensive program. But I imagine that most colleges would have the backing of their student body just the same as in pre-war years."

If these two problems can be solved in Sunday's meeting, Gauthier said, the college representatives will work out a year-round athletic schedule. Efforts will be made to avoid conflicts with previous Ohio conference committments, he said.

Conference schools which will be represented are Denison, Wooster, Oberlin, Baldwin-Wallace and Case. Non-conference schools attending are Miami, Bowling Green and Ohio Wesleyan. Gauthier said DePauw university of Indiana also might be invited to attend.

Two Classes Of Football

College Game to Be Very Good or Bad.

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—There will be two classes of college football in the nation this fall—very good and very bad—and a survey today indicates that the toughest in the nation will be Dartmouth, Michigan, Northwestern, Southern California and Yale.

The very good brand will be played by those schools fortunate enough to have future navy men and marines stationed there.

* * *

The "haves" will be able to put on a brand of ball which will stack up favorably with the best of former years. But the "have-nots," playing with 17-year-olds and boys classed in 4-F, will have to struggle along on a high school basis.

* * *

The army ban against permitting soldier-students to participate in intercollegiate sports struck many schools hard and has caused many to throw in the towel for the duration. But it has been a boon to others—because they now will dominate their respective sections.

Dartmouth, with 22 members of its varsity squad returning, looms as the toughest in the east with a horde of former college stars who now are navy and marine personnel. Yale, too, fell heir to some while Princeton is in the same category.

In the mid-west, Northwestern and Michigan made the greatest talent hauls. The Wildcats got Bill Garnass, Herman Frickey, Dick Kelley, Herb Hein, Cliff Anderson and Chuck Dellago of last season's strong Minnesota team and Bill Partington, star Nebraska center. Michigan virtually took over the Wisconsin team, 1942 Big Ten runner-up, with such contributions as Elroy Hirsch, Jack Wink, Fred Negus, Pat Boyle and Bob Hanzlik.

Notre Dame, too, fared well, getting Minnesota backs Vic Kublitski and Wayne Williams and keeping tackles Pat Filley and Ziggy Czarboski and halfback Angelo Bertelli of its own squad. Purdue also receives navy and marine aid while Marquette and Illinois have only navy personnel.

* * *

It looks like a tough year in the toughest league of all for Ohio State, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota — schools the navy forgot and the army remembered.

* * *

Marine trainees who include five of last year's varsity make Southern California's Trojans a team to reckon with on the coast. California rates well up there with a host of navy and marine personnel, while UCLA and Washington are supported by navy trainees.

You don't have to be a prophet to predict that Anchors Aweigh and The Marine Hymn will be top songs on the gridiron hit parade this fall.

MAR-KELL FAVORED

CHICAGO —(INS)— Calumet farm's Mar-Kell, carrying top weight of 126 pounds, was an even money choice today to win the $10,000 Arlington matron stakes to be run at Washington park this afternoon.

DEFENDS TITLE

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Defending Champion Byron Nelson, of Toledo, O., today headed a field of 82 professional and amateur golfers filing entries for the $10,000 Tam O'Shanter open July 19-25.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— How'd you like to be a college cheer leader next fall and try to stir up a few rousing cheers for alma mammy when most of the players and a good part of the spectators are navy trainees from some other college that has been anything but alma to your school? . . . For instance, nine ex-Minnesota gridders and six from Nebraska are among Northwestern's navy and marine groups. . . . Who knows? Maybe Muhlenberg and Kutztown teachers will turn up the powerhouse teams this year —yeah, they have navy outfits, too.

* * *

NAMING NAMES

Here's where a few of the better-known players have landed: Minnesota's Herman Frickey at Northwestern, Wisconsin's Elroy Hirsch and a lot of other Badgers at Michigan, Johnny (Presto) Podesto of St. Mary's at College of the Pacific, Texas' Jack Field and Ken Matthews and TCU's Van Hall at Southwestern, Wake Forest's Pat Preston and Buck Jones at Duke and Alabama's Don Whitmire and N. C. State's Eddie's Teague at North Carolina' U. . . . Of course, there's no telling how many of them will want to play football.

* * *

SCRAP COLLECTION

Eddie Shore and Al Sutphin are thinking seriously of bringing their Buffalo and Cleveland teams into the National Hockey league. . . . The British Broadcasting corporation will carry play-by-play on the All-Star baseball game to American troops in England and America, but strictly American Don Dunphy will do the talking. . . . While he was in California making the "This Is the Army" film, Joe Louis did a bit of golfing with Sam Snead and reports Sammy taught him how to take two or three strokes off his score.

* * *

Q. AND A.

Wanta know the best baseball prediction ever made? . . . No, it wasn't the time our old man picked the White Sox over the Cubs in the 1906 world series and couldn't get his selections printed. . . . On the first Sunday of the 1916 season Fielder Jones predicted that Tris Speaker would take the American league batting title from Ty Cobb because the other clubs would pitch more right handers against Cleveland. . . . That was the only time in 13 years that Ty failed to reach the top.

JANIROS WIN

AKRON —(AP)— The brothers Janiro, Frankie and Tony, gave two New York state amateurs a boxing lesson here last night. Tony, national featherweight Golden Gloves champion, polished off Pete McQuillen of Buffalo in the first round of a scheduled five-stanza bout, and Frankie, a middleweight, knocked Johnny Lynch of Auburn to the canvas with a single punch 45 seconds after the opening gong. The Janiro brothers live in Youngstown.

Not many people know that whales have lice. The parasites are about an inch long, and are equipped with sharp feet which they use as grappling hooks to cling to the tough slippery hide. They congregate in hundreds around the whales' mouths and eyes, but protected by a thick layer of blubber, the whales are apparently unharmed by their lice.

* * *

The United States now uses carrier pigeons which should not be captured, killed or delayed, as war service might be impeded. They all wear leg bands, and, if you find one injured, the police should be notified at once. If one happens to visit your premises, let it go and it will likely be on its way again, after a little rest.

Because all members of the bass and pike family possess a pugnacious character, a plug that hits the water with a splash seems to excite their battling instincts. A fly, though, should be cast delicately and silently as the natural insect it imitates, drops upon the water without disturbance.

And speaking of plugs and flies, Yunckers can still supply you with most of the old reliable fish getters. The tried and proven lures and flies that give you greater sport and put more fish on your stringer.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO SHOW ADVANCE

Early Profit Taking Puts Crimp In Climb For Some Leaders.

NEW YORK — Stocks generally continued the advance in today's market although early profit taking handicapped a number of leaders.

Fractionally ahead at a fairly lively opening were Bethlehem, Commonwealth Edison, American Smelting, Sears Roebuck and Chesapeake & Ohio. General Electric slipped, along with Western Union, Boeing and Southern railway.

Boardrooms saw another argument for the carriers in the interstate commerce commission survey disclosing the strong boxes of the country's principal railways at the end of April contained a record total of $2,346,270,006 of cash or easily cashable securities.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Grains opened mixed today as traders endeavored to interpret the latest government crop report, which showed prospects for most crops had improved substantially from a month ago but were still well under last year.

Wheat started ¼ lower to ½ higher, July $1.45½, September $1.46-$1.45¾, and rye was ½ lower to ⅜ higher, July $1.09½-¾.

press conference at his headquarters.

These conferences are held fairly regularly. You get information straight from the horse's mouth there. Some of it you can use and most of it you can't. But just knowing helps to interpret events as they arise.

The Allied commander in chief was speaking generally of the situation as developing.

Suddenly, without the slightest warning, he said overseas operations would be undertaken within the month. The room seemed to freeze.

It became as still as a picture and there was a sensation of glassy unreality. Nothing moved except the commander-in-chief's icy blue eyes which went slowly from face to face.

He said that the attack would be aimed at Sicily.

And if there was surprise before it was sheer numbing shock now.

Eisenhower said the Allies might be "riding for a bloody nose" but he thought the job could be done.

Before the conference ended he warned listeners not to talk. It was more than a warning.

Something in his voice struck deep. It was cold and hard.

After the conference one correspondent murmured: "I almost wish he hadn't told us. I have never been so conscious of a responsibility."

No Make-Believe.

"Desert Victory," which opens Sunday at the Ritz, is the day-by-day account of the rout of Rommel at the hands of Montgomery's British Eighth Army. The full length picture was photographed in the field by Film Units of the British Army and R. A. F. Lana Turner and Robert Young are starred in the other Ritz attraction, "Slightly Dangerous."

ALLIES SWARM INTO SICILY IN HUGE INVASION

Chain of Smoke, Flame Spreads 10 Miles Inland Under Aerial Umbrella.

cluded the important Axis air bases of Trapani, Marsala, Mazzaro, Milo and Castelventrano, all on the western end of the island and linked by a network of good roads with the big port of Palermo.)

The Allied invasion forces, specially trained in American-built landing barges for many weeks, were reported meeting "strong resistance" in the first phase of fighting on European soil just two months after the last Axis forces were driven from Africa.

Eisenhower, following a communique announcing the landings, broadcast a message to occupied France in which he described the invasion of Sicily as "the first stage in the liberation of the European continent" and told the French people to remain calm until they were called upon to act, which he hinted might be soon.

The crossing of the 90-mile "moat" from Tunisia to the rugged island of Sicily, which once had 4,000,000 population, was made in all types of naval craft, including special landing barges brought under their own power from the United States to strike at Italy just three years and one month after Mussolini stabbed France in the back. (There was no mention of French troops taking part in the invasion of Sicily.)

For two weeks huge Allied air fleets based in northwest Africa and the Middle East had hammered Sicily, seeking to knock out Axis air power, demolish air bases, destroy railroad facilities and ports and isolate the island from the Italian mainland. For the last seven days the air attack had been almost continuous, day and night.

Then the converted freighters, the big battleships, the fast destroyers, the heavily armed cruisers and the new landing barges — heavily armed and heavily protected — were assembled by the hundreds and put out in darkness from the African coast. Crouching in the barges and jammed aboard the transports were American troops that had been practicing invasion assaults for weeks and were toughened and ready for the hardest battle of their lives.

There were Canadian troops, too—the rough-and-ready soldiers who had been waiting (presumably until recently in England) for the chance to avenge their comrades who fell at Dieppe and had long been promised the honor of spearheading the invasion of Hitler's European fortress.

The British forces, which chased Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel across Africa and into the sea, were the third part of the Allied team which struck at Sicily in an operation that found land, sea and air forces cooperating magnificently under Eisenhower's command.

The engineers, given the toughest jobs in such hazardous operation, carried bangalore torpedoes —a gadget about 15 to 18 feet long and encased in a two or three-inch pipe — used to shove into barbed wire entanglements in order to blast open a path for the assault troops.

Allied forces from Malta, only 60 miles away from Sicily, were presumed to have joined the invasion units somewhere off the island coast.

And then, in the last period of darkness, the big guns of the naval armada opened up.

The guns flashing out in the darkness may have been the first sign the nervous Axis defense forces received that the battle to knock Italy out of the war had begun.

Although the steady pounding of Allied airplanes had knocked out the main Sicilian harbors closest to Italy, there were late reports that Nazi and Fascists reserves had been rushed to the island and there was little question that the struggle for the mountainous stronghold would be a costly and probably a long one. Preliminary reports indicated that the Axis resistance was fierce and that the enemy airplanes were attacking desperately, often diving through their own anti-aircraft fire in their efforts to get at Allied bombers.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, the Nazi air expert who had commanded an air fleet on the Russian front, was reported directing the Axis aerial defenses with the aid of Baron Wolfram von Richtofen, who also had been on the eastern front.

Reports from the battle front in the early stages were meagre, but Allied headquarters said that information would be issued as regularly as possible.

The first great Allied assault against the European fortress was started after a scientific day-and-night aerial bombardment that accelerated steadily for two weeks. The Allied attacks met steadily decreasing Axis aerial opposition but it was uncertain whether the enemy was holding back his main strength.

As the aerial assault reached a crescendo, fighters and fighter-bombers in large numbers joined in the attack to shoot up Axis trucks and railroad equipment in order to hinder or halt the movement of enemy forces when the invasion began.

Sicily is the largest island in the Mediterranean, lying off the toe of the Italian boot and separated from the mainland by the Messina straits which are from two to five miles wide. Much of the Italian air defense was believed to have been forced back to southern Italy in recent days and the first objective of the Allies was to seize air bases on the island in order to provide cover for invading troops.

The climax of the aerial preparation for invasion came eight months and three days after the Americans landed in North Africa and found the Axis main network of airdromes on Sicily littered with rubbish and pitted with bomb craters.

But the enemy had many good air bases left, strung like a chain of beads around the coast through Trapani, Palermo, Messina, Catania, Syracuse, Licata, and Sciacca. The nearest Allied air bases are on Pantelleria and Malta.

There were strectches of good beach for landing operations available to the Allied invaders, but the island generally is mountainous, topped by volcanic Mount Etna which towers 10,742 feet into the skyline. On the south shore, the hills rise to 1600 feet at many points, but Sicily has 1,722 miles of coastline from which the Allies could select their landing points.

There are no important rivers on the island but the mountains, ranging up to 4,000 feet in many places, run east and west and roads and railroads must pass through many tunnels which could easily be blocked.

Blow Follows Africa Victory By 2 Months

(By Associated Press)

Today's invasion of Sicily came two months after Allied forces had crushed the resistance of a quarter of a million Axis troops in Tunisia. Ever since then, Axis broadcasts have talked nervously of transports, warships, and supply vessels moving in a steady stream eastward past Gibraltar.

In weeks of feverish preparation for defense, the Axis had strung rings of minefields around the island, installed strong coastal batteries, and submarines constantly lurked in its waters.

Another hazard confronting Eisenhower's amphibious offensive was the nearness of enemy bomber bases on the mainland. Many of these, however, like the many airfields on Sicily itself, have been pounded steadily in recent weeks.

Sicily, densely populated with 4,000,000 persons in peacetime, was denuded of many of its residents as the invasion became more imminent. Axis reports saying they had been evacuated to the mainland.

The Italian mainland itself, less than two miles away across the narrowest point of the Messina strait at the eastern corner of the island, would be the next logical step for the Allied armies.

Sicily, 9,860 square miles in area, roughly the size of Vermont, is mountainous and hilly.

Good harbors abound in the northern coast, but it is steep and cliff-bound, difficult to assault. Along the east, also fringed by bold cliffs, Mt. Etna towers into the sky.

RAF Stages Heavy Raid on Ruhr

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— Strong formations of U. S. heavy bombers and flights of RAF light bombers attacked German fighter bases in France today.

LONDON — (AP) — British heavy bombers made "a very heavy attack" on the central Ruhr last night, it was announced officially today, and swarms of Allied fighters and bombers followed this up with daylight assaults on European targets.

An air ministry communique said Gelsenkirchen, 27 miles west of Dortmund on the Duisburg-Hamm railway, was among the Ruhr targets hit.

Ten of the big RAF bombers were listed as missing from the Ruhr assault.

Yanks Smash Axis Airdrome on Crete

CAIRO —(U.P.)— American heavy bombers smashed the Naleme airdrome on the Island of Crete in daylight yesterday and attacked Taormina and Comiso on Sicily, a communique said today.

The attack on Naleme on Crete, often called an invasion stepping stone to Greece, heavily damaged sheds and ground aircraft.

(London dispatches today speculated that other blows against the European fortress would soon follow the invasion of Sicily. The attack on Crete and a new order closing the Syrian border with Turkey, presumably to guard military movements by Allied troops, centered attention on the eastern Mediterranean.)

ARMY COURSE SET

TIFFIN— (U.P.)—Clarence Josephson, president of Heidelberg college, announced today that the war department has approved assignment of an army specialized training unit of 250 men to the college. The course will begin Aug. 7.

in proportion to fiercer Soviet resistance and mounting enemy losses," Dubkov said.

Russian tanks were reported fully engaging enemy forces all along the embattled southern front.

Though now stymed at both ends of a 165-mile sector of the southern front, Nazi legions estimated at nearly a half million men and several thousand tanks hammered ceaselessly at Russian defense in a desperate effort to close a pincers around a Soviet force estimated at 400,000 men in the Kursk salient.

(A German broadcast claimed that one panzer spearhead had pushed 37 miles north of Belgorod toward Kursk and that another had overrun Soviet defense behind Belogorod in the direction of Stary Oskol, crossing the northern Donets at one point.

The army organ Red Star said the Belgorod battle showed no sign of abatement. Many villages changed hands repeatedly in the course of a few hours, but nowhere has the enemy progressed in the past 24 hours, the dispatch said.

Equally fierce battles were raging between Orel and Kursk at the northern end of the front, but here the enemy has been stopped cold for more than four days and at some points the Russians have gained ground in counter attacks.

The Germans continued to draw from other fronts to maintain and even intensify the pace of their attacks and replace losses during the first five days of at least 40,000 troops, 2,036 tanks and 904 planes.

In tanks alone, the Germans were believed to have lost the equivalent of 10 panzer divisions.

The U. S. Army Service Forces handles more merchandise than any other organization in world history.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—(By Wireless)—If all goes well, the visit of General Giraud to Washington is likely to result in Allied recognition of the French Committee of National Liberation as the defacto government of France.

Some such action as that is needed urgently to provide a focal point for reviving French patriotism and to give a stronger incentive to General Giraud and Charles De Gaulle to hold together. The political difficulties during the eight months since the landings in North Africa have been discouraging at times to those who wish to see a united France.

Clapper

Prior to the landings, the British had placed strong hopes in De Gaulle as the leader of the French people and just a year ago they gave him support by recognizing his movement as the Fighting French. Complications arose in connection with the North African landings because of the strong position of the anti-De Gaullist factions there.

Regardless of the above political considerations it was necessary to insure as much order as possible through Frenchmen to whom the local populations would be loyal. General Eisenhower proceeded on the policy of political expediency for military security. As one high American officer said, if it were necessary to play politics to save the lives of American soldiers, to shorten the period of fighting even by one day, then the Americans were ready to do it.

• • •

That history is now well known. But it may not be realized at home that the same considerations continue to hold true. The importance of North Africa will continue throughout the war. It continues now as much as ever to be necessary that the lines of communications, the cities and all areas around which Allied military activities are carried on should be peaceably loyal to the Allies.

So the French problem takes on a dual aspect. For purposes of military security it seems necessary to continue to rely on the imaginative Giraud who has the support of the bulk of the French army in this area and the loyalty of most of the French officials here.

Algiers is a metropolis and only one of several large cities where local government, municipal services, utilities and police order must run smoothly so that military activities will not suffer. That has been the big function of the Giraud influence in North Africa. That is the reason why the Allied authorities have insisted that Giraud continue in his vital position.

• • •

But there is another important problem, namely, providing a rallying point for French patriotism in France. For that function everyone recognizes De Gaulle as best fitted.

But De Gaulle is temperamentally difficult. His sponsors, the British, are somewhat weary of his prima donna methods as I learned in London. To make the situation more difficult, De Gaulle lately has shown a tendency to advance the French nationalistic movement at expense of goodwill toward the Allies.

Some of these things are causing apprehension although it has not advanced to the serious stage as yet. The fact that De Gaulle is an indispensable figure in restoring a sense of nationality in France and encouraging resistance to the Nazis made it necessary for the Allies to recognize him and give him a strong role in the French Committee of National Liberation. There you have the two main reasons for the hybrid character of the French arrangements. They are unsatisfactory. It has led to the ridiculous situation of virtually two general staffs with the possibility of plenty of future friction. Naturally the whole subject is highly controversial. I have found much conflict of views among Americans here and in London but it seems to me the prevailing judgment is that the best is being made of exasperating difficulties.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—If disunity among the American people has reached or should reach the point of disruption, who then can provide the remedy?

I am not persuaded that mere disagreement and political opposition between the ins and outs constitute disruption at home but there was a precedent in the South after the Civil war which reminds us how the American people react if the human rights and property rights of the individual are disregarded beyond a certain point of endurance.

Pegler

It surely is possible and worth while for the national government to yield some of the advanced salients of its political and social revolution at home for the sake of unity and efficiency. Those were peacetime experiments, some of them undertaken in an adventurous spirit, which can be waived for the war period but, if not waived, will still be opposed by those who believe them to be wrong. This opposition will not amount to such lawless insurrection as the CIO resorted to to gain its objectives in Michigan but will be stout political resistance nevertheless.

The principal cause of disunity, in my belief, is still the Wagner act and the labor policy of the New Deal, not only because it denies the worker the very right which it professes to guarantee him, namely the right to select his own collective bargaining agents, but because in its administration it has placed a large and worthy element of the American people, the employers, in a class roughly parallel to that of the disfranchised white southerners after 1865.

Such men cannot by any legal distortion be placed under condemnation as unrepentant traitors as the case was with the white southerners who supported the confederacy They had obeyed the existing laws prior to the Wagner act and they were willing, though in many cases reluctant, to comply with the Wagner act. They have not tried to disrupt the union of states and are in all ways, except as may have been charged in individual indictments, good citizens.

Nevertheless, the class and character of the men who were sent out to administer the law, even to conduct trials as prejudiced judges, was comparable to that of the northern carpetbagger. Elections were rigged. Employers were endlessly harassed and workers were terrorized. The enforcement personnel were openly and mockingly partial to the organizers who were political allies and appointees of the governing party and many of these organizers and executives of unions were rascals. Yet, consistently, the employer is held to have two strikes on him in any controversy even though the organizer is a total stranger to the community and to the workers for whom he has set his trap.

Again, as in the South, the opposition is not an aristocratic move. There the little people, as the New Deal in its patronizing way describes the workers today, were goaded to opposition by the overbearing impudence, the trickery and the clever little schemes of the administrators set over them. Here, today, millions of workers have been taxed outrageously for membership in organizations which they were forced to join through terrorism, open and unrebuked.

As an overtone to the protest against such excesses, has come the constant cry of "labor baiter" and "labor hater" from men and women who are, themselves, baiters and haters and political exploiters of labor.

Not one of them has dared to defend the proposition that a pick-and-shovel worker should have to pay $50 down, plus dues, fees and other taxes for the God-given right to work nor the proposition that compulsory membership is consistent with Wagner's offer of a free choice of bargaining agents. Not one of them has dared to defend any of the thieves who have been caught red-handed, most of them by newspaper initiative and few by the initiative of the department of justice, nor any of the anti-American Communists bent on substituting one-party, minority despotism over the free American people.

It would be no sacrifice of any right of labor so to amend the Wagner act as to give a defendant employer his day in a genuine court and a fair trial or to guarantee the worker the same protection against union terrorism that is provided against boss terrorism.

Such a concession would remove from the domestic situation the most disruptive point of disagreement in all our family disputes.

This, I believe, is the most troublesome single factor in our domestic affairs. Congress should have passed the remedy years ago but, plainly, congress lacks the political and civic honor and courage to do so against the opposition of the national government Then, let the national government yield a point which is morally indefensible and the principal cause of internal discord and see whether the people are not reassured and relieved of a doubt which troubles their faith in the leadership of their country in time of terrible war.

W. T. HURSH, 68, PHARMACIST FOR 45 YEARS, DIES

Heart Ailment Causes Death At General Hospital of Store's Proprietor.

Pharmacist in Mansfield for 45 years, William T. Hursh, 68, proprietor, of the Hursh Drug store, 42 East Fourth street, died today at 8:30 a. m. at General hospital.

Troubled with a heart ailment for several months, he was taken to the hospital a week ago for observation. He lived at 367 Shepherd road.

Mr. Hursh took over the operation of the Hursh Drug store in 1898 upon his graduation from Ohio Northern university in that year. The store, one of the oldest pharmacies in the city, was operated by his brother, Arthur, prior to the time he assumed management.

During his nearly half a century as a pharmacist Mr. Hursh became well-known in this section of the country through medicines and ointments which he compounded. These were patented and sold under his name.

Born in Mifflin township, Feb. 3, 1875, he attended public school there. During the many years he made his home in Mansfield Mr. Hursh was active in church, lodge, and civic affairs.

He was a charter member of the United Brethren church and was one of the instigators in the organization and building of the United Brethren church on Park Avenue East in 1906. He was an officer in the church from the time of its organization serving as superintendent of the Sunday school, class leader, highest honor in the church and trustee, a position which he held at the time of his death.

He was a member of the Mansfield Lodge 35 F. and A. M. and of the Rotary and Lions organizations.

Surviving are his widow, Mary Elizabeth Sampsell Hursh; three sons, Paul of Long Island, N. Y., Richard of Bellville and Raymond of Mansfield; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Schear of Tampa, Fla. and Mrs. Esther Diepert of VanLice, Ohio; six grandchildren; two brothers, Edwin of Westerville and Arthur of Mansfield, and one sister, Mrs. Albert Bush of Mifflin township.

The body was removed to the Finefrock funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

FACES CHARGE

Navy Man Indicted In Hotel Slaying During Argument.

NORFOLK, Va.—(UP)—Ersel R. Dye, third class naval petty officer, of Conneaut, O., was under arrest here today on a charge of slaying William H. Williams, jr., of oRanoke, Va., in a hotel here a month ago.

A Norfolk grand jury returned a true bill against Dye yesterday, as the trial was set for July 21.

According to Sam Pritchard, hotel night clerk where Dye and Williams had registered, Williams' body was found garroted with his necktie after Dye came down from the room, asked to see the registration card and fled the hotel.

Norfolk police said they had obtained a confession from Dye in which he said he and Williams got into an argument and that he "jerked Williams' necktie tight around his neck and tied it to a radiator."

NEW M'ARTHUR LOCK TO OPEN

Will Speed Passage of Big Ships Through Soo On Great Lakes Trips.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Great Lakes shipping, plagued by a late opening and numerous accidents during the early weeks, will receive needed aid tomorrow when the new Gen. Douglas MacArthur deep-water lock at Sault Ste. Marie is opened officially to regular vessel traffic.

The MacArthur lock, completed almost four months ahead of schedule and vitally needed for the recently constructed giant ships of the lakes, will open just 88 years after Michigan completed construction of a little 350-foot lock which enabled the first lake ships to travel between ports of the lower lakes and Lake Superior.

The lock is 800 feet in length, 80 feet wide and 30 feet deep—not as large as three other locks. But its increased depth makes it valuable to the shipping industry. It is 5½ feet deeper than any of the existing locks and will permit the largest ships to take maximum cargoes.

The Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, one of the largest marine construction firms in the country, built the new lock far ahead of schedule. The Army-Navy "E" award will be presented to the company on Sunday for their service.

The new lock was turned over to the government last Sunday.

High ranking officials of the army and navy and lake shipping officials will be on hand for the ceremonies Sunday.

DIES AT GALION

Harry M. Curfman, 62, Taken By Death at Home.

GALION — A retired machinist Harry M. Curfman, 62, died early today at his home here. He had been ill the past week.

Surviving are his widow, Emma; a son, Ralph, and a daughter, Mrs. Wesley Smith, and four grandchildren, all of Galion, and a brother, Oliver, of Wads worth.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Monday at Peace Lutheran church. Rev. Philip E. Auer, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Up and Down the Street

A fern owned by Miss Mary K. Swint of 104 Sherman avenue, has aroused considerable interest among local horticulturists who consider it an oddity. What makes the fern different than other fern plants is that it bears flowers periodically. Just 25 years from the first blooming, the plant is again covered with star-shaped flowers. It has had no flowers from the time of the first blooming until now.

Members of the Mansfield and Richland county civilian defense units are going to begin wearing bars on their lapels one of these days. City and county OCD officials were informed today of a plan whereby air raid wardens, auxiliary police and firemen, fire watchers, and other defense workers will earn awards after completing 500 hours of service on the home front. Ribbon bars will be issued to workers for 500, 1,000, 2,000, 3,000, 4,000, and 5,000 hours of service on certification by the city and county OCD offices.

PROBES MID-AIR PLANE CRACK-UP

Army Investigating Collision Of Transport, Cargo Ship In Which 8 Died.

(By United Press)

WRIGHT FIELD, Dayton—An army board of inquiry today opened an investigation into the cause of the mid-air collision of two army airplanes over Wright reservation in which eight persons were killed and two civilians were saved.

The dead included Capt. Seymour G. Knight of Detroit, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross and air medal with Oak Leaf Cluster who has recently returned from action in the Middle East, and Capt. Louis E. Miller, 23, of Marietta, O., nephew of Maj. Gen. Lester T. Miller, chief of supply division, air service command.

Other victims were: 1st Lt. Edwin J. Shurman, 24, East Chicago, Ind.; 2nd Lt. Horace J. Adelson, 23, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; 2nd Lt. David P. Hamilton, 22, Augusta, Ga.; 2nd Lt. Alexander D. Heckel, 22, Lancaster, Pa., Master Sgt. T. J. Malloy, 25, of Bayfield, Colo., and Henry P. Repak, 25, New Orleans, civilian aeronautical engineer employed at Wright.

Two civilians parachuted to safety. Ed Kramer, 26, Brooklyn, N. Y., received a broken jaw in landing, but Gordon Hawk, 26, Troy, O., was uninjured.

The planes, a four-engined transport and a twin-engined cargo ship, were flying at a low altitude when they collided and crashed. The transport burst into flames when it crashed. Each plane contained five men and was on "routine flight."

WHEAT YIELDS RUNNING SHORT

Ohio Crop Falls Three Bushels Behind Acreage Average.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— First reports from farmers harvesting wheat in southern Ohio indicate that yields are running about three bushels an acre under the state's 10-year average of 20 bushels to an acre, Elmer F. Kruse, state farm war board chairman, said today.

Kruse said the wet spring had resulted in an abnormal amount of wheat scab and red rust, resulting in an average yield of from 15 to 17 bushels an acre in southern portions of the state.

No scab has been reported in the eastern and northeastern sections of the state and only a limited amount in the northwestern portions, he said. The barley harvest now has been practically completed, Kruse said.

CONGRESS ENDS ITS KOW-TOWS, TAFT ASSERTS

Senator Declares Legislators Free Selves From 10 Years Of New Deal Subservience.

(By United Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Sen. Robert O. Taft, R., O., addressing the Alabama Bar association, asserted today that the newly-recessed 78th congress, in repudiating many administration domestic policies, had closed a ten-year era of subservience to New Deal philosophies.

He said that the New Deal has "recklessly disregarded the most fundamental principles established in the American constitution, which have guided this country so well for 150 years."

"This congress has been determined that these principles be reestablished, and that further progress be within the framework of the principles of American democracy," he declared.

Taft said the 78th congress had followed President Roosevelt on all foreign matters but had rebelled on many policies on the domestic front.

Congress cut appropriations for the domestic branch of the office of war information drastically, he said, because it "appears to be full of crackpots and incompetents and Communists," but continued the foreign branch with virtually no cut because of its assistance to the armed forces.

The Smith-Connally anti-strike bill was passed by congress over the president's veto because congress "felt that in time of war it could not permit any man or group to defy the government," Taft said.

The National Youth administration and other federal infringements on states rights were wiped out, he said.

Of post-war planning, Taft said that instead of a "socialistic economy" as he said was planned by the national resources planning board, he believed that the planning committee headed by Sen. Walter F. George, D., Ga., will present a different and sounder plan.

Taft said the most important phases in post-war planning are the establishment of sound finance, maintenance of full employment, and a freer capital market.

JUDGE DIES

Fred H. Wolf, 73, Was Former Resident of Shelby.

Funeral services for Judge Fred H. Wolf, 73, of Fulton county, who died in Detwiler hospital late yesterday will be held at the Edgar Brothers funeral home in Wauseon at 2:30 p. m. next Monday. He formerly lived in Shelby.

Judge Wolf served on the Fulton county bench for nearly 30 years and was one of the best known jurists in the state. He was in demand as a visiting judge for the larger counties to help clear congested dockets, and had often served in that capacity in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus.

Born in Bluffson, Ind., he attended school in Shelby, and read law in the office of Bailey and Bailey in Ottawa.

Judge Wolf was elected to the Fulton county common pleas court bench in 1915, an office he held virtually without opposition until his death.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian Eastman Wolf, and two children, Frederick, a Toledo attorney, and Eleanor, librarian in Wauseon.
